Hamm Names Jailed Touhy Desperadoes As Kidnapers

Shackled Leader Under Heavy Police Guard on Auto Trip.

Abduction Charged To Four Gangsters

Captive Oil Magnate's Wife Asks Contact With Captors.

Milwaukee, July 24 (AP).—Roger Touhy, the gangster whom Chicago police rate as being "tougher than Al Capone ever was," came here in shackles under heavy guard tonight after he had been identified by William Hamm, jr., wealthy St. Paul brewer, as one of the men who kidnaped him.

With Touhy were three of his henchmen, Eddie McFadden, Willie Sharkey and Gustave Schafer.

Five automobile loads of Federal agents and police brought the men here from Elkhorn, Wis., where they had been transferred earlier from Chicago.

Previously they had been taken from Elkhorn to Chicago, where Melvin Purvis, chief of the Government Investigation Bureau, announced that Hamm positively identified them.

Secret "Show-up."

It was understood that the men were taken to Chicago for a secret "show-up" in the hope they could be identified either by Hamm or John (Jake the Barber) Factor, both of whom have paid heavy ransoms to kidnapers in recent months. Factor failed to identify the men, explaining that at no time was he able to see his kidnapers.

Purvis and Hamm obtained Federal warrants charging the four gangsters with violation of the so-called Lindbergh law, aimed at kidnapers. Officers believed they could prove that both Hamm and Factor were held in Wisconsin. Hamm, they said, was brought to this State from Minnesota, Factor from Illinois, making both cases clean-cut violations of the Federal law against taking kidnaped persons from one State to another.

Police Called Off.

Oklahoma City, July 24 (AP).—Prompted by a desire to assure the safe return of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, held for ransom by two machine gunners who kidnaped him from his home Saturday night, Federal authorities were called off the case tonight for 24 hours.

"Our only interest at this time is the safe return of Mr. Urschel," said R. H. Colvin, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, in issuing the order.

Grief stricken and frantic because of lack of word from her husband's captors, Mrs. Berenice Slick Urschel had pleaded for all authorities to step aside and permit the kidnapers to establish contact with the family.

A few hours earlier, three deputy sheriffs, armed with submachine guns and rifles, sped away on a secret mission connected with the kidnaping, but Bill Eads, in charge, refused to divulge details of the inquiry.

All-Union Movie Strike Is Called

Producers Hired Others in Violation of Agreement, Declares Leader.

Hollywood, July 24 (AP).—Every union laborer employed in the motion picture studios of Hollywood was ordered today to walk out on strike at midnight tonight.

The strike order was issued by Richard L. Green, international representative of the International Alliance of Stage Employes and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada.

It was called on the grounds that the motion picture producers had violated a union agreement, wherein they promised not to employ nonunion help. Mr. Green said the producers had employed nonunion men to replace the striking sound technicians who went out on strike Saturday night.

O'Connell's Kidnapers Silent; Hunt Goes On

The eighteenth day of the strange abduction passed without uncovering any definite clews.

Goemboes En Route To Confer With Duce

Budapest, Hungary, July 24 (AP).—Premier Julius Goemboes left for Rome tonight accompanied by Koloman von Kanya, foreign minister, to confer with Premier Mussolini.

An official announcement last week said the conference would be concerned with "questions of interest to both countries."

Goal Reached, Mollisons Ask For Long Rest

New York, July 24 (AP).—Leaving their wrecked transatlantic plane behind them, Capt. James A. Mollison and his wife, the former Amy Johnson, arrived in New York from Bridgeport, Conn., tonight, still shaken from their close brush with death, but thankful to have reached their original destination safely.

"All we want to do is to go to bed for a good long rest," Amy said as they arrived at Floyd Bennett Field in a giant amphibian plane.

The British couple, who successfully crossed the Atlantic only to crash headlong in a marsh last night with their goal literally in sight, were flown leisurely down from Bridgeport by Pilot Ralph C. Wickford.

Greeted by Thousands.

Several thousand persons, many of whom had waited hours to greet them last night, lined the banks of Jamaica Bay as the amphibian dropped down near Gen. Italo Balbo's air fleet, and watched the Mollisons carried to a waiting automobile.

Both still wore bandages and Mrs. Mollison grimaced frequently when she was taken out of the plane here.

From the field, the Mollisons were taken to the Plaza Hotel, at the foot of Central Park, where they planned to spend several days resting.

Flier Acknowledges Greeting.

"Scotland forever!" cried one woman in the crowd, and Mollison, the intrepid Scot, waved feebly in reply.

"Dour Jim" he has been dubbed, but a wan smile shone through the bandages when he heard that cry.

Accompanied by a nurse, the Mollisons were driven from the Bridgeport Hospital, where they spent the night after being rescued from the dark marshland, and placed aboard the amphibian.

Mrs. Mollison said she was "just dying" to see New York's skyscrapers from the air, so Pilot Wickford circled over lower Manhattan before coming down at Floyd Bennett Field.

Kin of Alphonso Weds Daughter of Count

Urrugne, France, July 24 (AP).—Mlle. Marisol Nesia y Lesseps, daughter of the Count and Countess de Mora, and the Infante Don Jose of Bavaria, Bourbon, nephew of the former King of Spain, were married at a civil ceremony today at the city hall.

The bridegroom is a son of the Infante Fernando, of Bavaria, Bourbon, and the late Infanta Maria Therese, sister of Alfonso XIII. He is a grandnephew of the Infanta Eulalie, of Spain.

Ban on Marc Connelly Lifted By Russians

Moscow, July 24 (U.P.).—A "misunderstanding" was advanced today as the probable reason for refusal of Russian authorities to grant a passport to Marc Connelly, American playwright, who was forced to halt in Sweden last week while en route to Moscow. Connelly now has been granted permission to enter Russia.

The rest of Connelly's party, including Edna Ferber and Ralph Pulitzer, as well as 300 tourists, were in Leningrad and Moscow today. Joseph C. Heymann and his wife and Miss Louise Curtis, all Americans, were refused visas for an undisclosed reason.

Planes Pursue Outlaws After Fierce Battle

Texan Wanted as Slayer of 4 Fights Iowans With Machine Guns.

Dexter, Iowa, July 24 (AP).—Clyde Barrow, notorious Texas outlaw, today fought a machine-gun battle with police in a wooded hide-away and tonight was dodging over western Iowa with a network of men in airplanes, armored cars, motorcycles and automobiles—all connected by wireless—hot in pursuit.

Fleeing with him in a stolen automobile was a man identified as Jack Sherman and a woman, both believed badly wounded. They had hidden out near here for a week with an arsenal of two machine guns, 34 automatic pistols and five revolvers.

Brother, Wife Captured.

The machine-gun battle brought about the capture of Marvin Barrow, brother of Clyde, and Marvin's wife. The brothers are wanted for four murders and wounding three policeman.

The chase began after a waiter in a restaurant reported one of the men had purchased five dinners daily and taken them into the woods. A farmer informed authorities of finding blood-stained bandages near their camp.

The battle took place at the outlaws' barricade behind a fallen tree when a posse approached. Clyde Barrow and the other two escaped the posse by wading a stream and creeping through a corn field. Marvin Barrow was wounded so badly he was not expected to live.

General Directs Chase.

Park A. Findley, chief of the State bureau of investigation, and Adjt. Gen. Charles Grahl, of the Iowa National Guard, led the hunt tonight from an airplane. They soared low over highways to direct the several hundred men in the search.

The State department's station at Des Moines kept the wireless-equipped cars constantly advised of the trend of the hunt. United States Marshal Fred Hird and several men with rifles and Federal Investigator O. C. Dewey, of Des Moines, joined in the search.

Former Governor Of Virginia Expires

Henry C. Stuart Leaves Notable Political and Business Record.

Lebanon, Va., July 24 (AP).—Henry Carter Stuart, 78, former Governor of Virginia, died at his Elk Garden home this afternoon after an illness of two weeks.

His daughter, Miss Mary Stuart, of California, and other members of his family were at his bedside. Gov. Stuart distinguished himself in State and Federal service and in business.

He served as governor from 1914 to 1918 after being elected without opposition either in the Democratic primary or in the general election.

He was trained in law but was not a practitioner. He was a man of varied business interests and had served in the constitutional convention in Virginia in 1901-02.

Youth Is Rescued From Cliff Ledge

Astoria, Wash., July 24 (AP).—Lacerated and weary, George Buchanan, 14, reached Seaside today in the arms of rescuers who removed him from the brink of an 800-foot cliff that rises above the beach of Tillamook Head.

Skipping near the top, the boy dropped 40 feet to a scant ledge. He was trapped there six hours. A party of 14 seaside residents sped to the scene after James Hawkins, 13, his companion, ran 10 miles down the Tillamook Head trail for help.

Nudist Leader Plays to S. R. O. On First Night

Women Are Strong for Plan to Start a Colony Near District.

Nudism—not in character, but in regular dress—played its first night's stand in Washington last evening, and they hung out the SRO sign.

Small men, big men, personable young women and the other kind, a fireman, a detective sergeant and a man with a clarinet came. And—they all paid 50 cents to get past the door to hear David Livingston of the International Nudist Conference tell about taking off your clothes.

The meeting started in a small room on the second floor of a downtown hotel. Fifteen minutes before the announced beginning, it was packed. Livingston, who was staging a one-man show, announced he was moving to bigger quarters for his lecture. He went downstairs to what was practically a hall. His audience followed.

The speaker was a small man of 30, with a bright face and a well-trimmed mustache. He said later he had gone to Harvard. He commenced to speak and by this time all seats were taken and they were standing around the walls.

"Nakedness Is Different."

"Nakedness and nudism," he began, "are different. Nakedness lays emphasis on sex. Nudism doesn't bother about it."

He talked on and the room was fairly bulging with 50-cent customers. Livingston touched, as he said, on just about every phase of the movement.

In the future, he pointed out, if hopes of the nudists are realized, tired business men won't be leaving their offices for golf in the afternoons. They'll be dashing off to nudist picnics instead.

He said it was funny about taking off your clothes in public.

"It makes grouchy, paunchy men do folk dances sometimes," he said.

They Don't Dislike Clothes.

As he neared the end of his talk, Livingston explained that Nudists do not believe in doing away with clothes. In cities and large office buildings and subways and street cars, he pointed out, clothes are quite an asset. But out in the open spaces, it's a different story.

When he finished his lecture, he held up a copy of the magazine he

Cooperation of Public Is Vital If National Recovery Succeeds, President Says, Urging Support

U. S. Bureaus Move to Push Job Program

Bring Own Agencies in Line With Recovery Plea to Industry.

3 Departments Allotted Funds Making Work for Hundreds.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Government yesterday began to move its own "industrial" establishment into line with the Recovery Administration's campaign to put the Nation to work.

Civil Service Commission funds were bolstered by a $220,000 allotment for new examinations and to finance a share of the recovery program.

The Public Works Administration allotted $5,000,000 to the War Department. The move at one stroke saved the jobs of 7,000 civilian ordnance employes, now on a 4-day week.

Another $5,000,000 was allocated to the Agriculture Department for soil erosion work. This, too, will bring Government employment to many, while creating new jobs on private pay rolls.

Ousted Workers Rehired.

At the same time, the Civil Service Commission announced rehiring of 229 ousted Civil Service workers from reemployment registers in one week. The total represented a continued gain over the 160 employes put back to work the week before, and approximately 100 the week prior.

The War and Agriculture allotments comprised only part of a $19,851,648 fund allocated by the Federal Emergency Administration, largely for job-creating public works.

Although no Budget Bureau or Public Works Administration confirmation could be had, it was learned from an authoritative Civil Service Commission source that the commission's $1,050,000 appropriation will be supplemented by $220,000, presumably from recovery funds.

More Records Necessary.

"We can not escape a considerable amount of extra work because of the industrial recovery program," a spokesman for the commission explained.

"First, we are required by law to keep service records of all employes in the executive branch, whether in the classified Civil Service or not. This includes, of course, the new agencies.

"Also, while most of the calls for help from the new agencies can be filled from our reemployment registers, not all can. For example, we already have held examinations especially for the Agriculture Adjustment Administration.

"Many of our registers of eligibles are five or six years old and new examinations will be held to replace these old ones. The new examinations will be announced from time to time.

"An old register loses much of its value because the 'cream' of it has been used, leaving only the eligibles with comparatively low ratings. The Government is entitled to the best available."

The jobs of approximately 371

Mattern, in Canada, Hopes to Be Back Soon

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—Jimmy Mattern telegraphed friends here today that he had arrived in Terrace, British Columbia, and would start within a few days for New York by air. Mattern said he would make the trip in a plane purchased by Floyd Bennett Air Field pilots, aided by a New York brewer.

Apparently Mattern has given up hope of flying back to Siberia, where he was forced down on his world flight, and resuming his solo flight from that point. Completion of Wiley Post's flight made such procedure useless.

Death to Be Asked In Kidnaping Trial

Kansas City, Mo., July 24 (AP).—With his life at stake, Walter H. McGee went on trial today charged with the kidnaping last May 21 of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy. The father paid $30,000 ransom.

T. A. J. Mastin, county prosecutor, said he would ask the death penalty under the Missouri law.

George McGee, arrested in Virginia, and Clarence Click, arrested in Kansas City, await trial in the kidnaping. Signed statements admitting the abduction have been ascribed to the three defendants by police. Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant United States Attorney General, is expected to arrive tomorrow to assist in the prosecution.

4-Minute Talkers Boost Prosperity

Silver tongues may turn to gold in the barrage of speeches which will be flung far and wide to inspire the Nation with the return of prosperity.

Chief speech maker Charles F. Horner yesterday revealed that a mere 200,000 orators will address unsuspecting audiences to inspire the "intestinal fortitude" needed to herald an era of good times. Horner, a moving figure in arranging the four-minute speeches of the World War, stated that a sample copy of the speeches is being prepared and would be made available to the speakers.

A simple process of arithmetic on a four-minute basis brings the speech peril to the alarming figure of 800,000 minutes of prosperity talk. However, immediate and phenomenal action might forestall some of the verbal gymnastics, it was suggested.

Hospital Probe Asked in Death Of Contractor

Son Says Casco Lee Duke, Called Drunk, Was Not Treated for Hurts.

A congressional investigation of Emergency Hospital looms as a possibility as a result of the death of Casco Lee Duke, 60, former contractor, of 1218 Gallatin street northwest, at Gallinger Hospital late yesterday.

Duke died from a fractured skull he is said to have received when he fell against a penny-weight scales at the Tipton & Myers drug store, 1400 Fourteenth street northwest, late Saturday.

Casco G. Duke, son of the dead man and a former prohibition agent, charged that when his father was removed to Emergency Hospital his case was diagnosed as only intoxication and no treatment was given him.

Because of the circumstances surrounding Duke's death, the coroner last night deferred the issuance of a death certificate, and announced that an autopsy would be held today.

According to Duke's son, Emergency Hospital authorities Saturday night asked the Third Police Precinct to remove him to the precinct station, saying he was only intoxicated.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly, at the station, is alleged to have disagreed with that diagnosis and ordered Duke taken to Gallinger Hospital.

No papers of identification were found in his clothes, but Gallinger physicians decided to operate without waiting for relatives to be found.

Another search of Duke's clothing revealed the son's telephone number and the son was located and rushed to the hospital, but his father had died.

At Emergency Hospital officials on duty last night were unable to communicate with the doctor who had made the report on Mr. Duke's condition, and, while one nurse was found who asserted that the patient "appeared" to be intoxicated, complete investigation went over until today.

Woman to Explore Sunken Ship's Hull

Norfolk, Va., July 24 (U.P.).—Miss Nora Drummond, Mount Vernon, N. Y., newspaper woman, tomorrow will attempt to explore the hull of the sunken treasure-laden Ward liner Merida, 60 miles off the Virginia Capes.

She is the daughter of Joseph Drummond, of Norfolk, agent for the salvage expedition led by Capt. H. L. Bowdoin, who reported five days ago that he had removed the liner's safe, believed to contain the crown jewels of the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian of Mexico.

Miss Drummond will leave here tomorrow on a Coast Guard cutter for the scene of the salvage operations. Drummond said she will be lowered to the Merida in a diving bell.

The agent here said jewels recovered from the Merida will be carried to New York because of a pending damage suit at Norfolk filed by Capt. John Hall, Gloucester fisherman, and Klass Evarts, diving expert, leaders of a rival expedition.

Austrian Imprisoned, Named Dog Dollfuss

Today Dr. Pranther was fined 1,000 shillings and imprisoned for one month because authorities considered the dog's name an insult to the chancellor.

32-36-Hour Week Is Set In Shipyards

Shorter Time Will Apply on $238,000,000 Naval Building Program.

Johnson Overrides Opposition, Department Stores Accept Code.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, yesterday smashed the idea that the 40-hour work week prescribed in the cotton textile code is to serve as a precedent for all industry.

Gen. Johnson fixed 32 and 36 hours as the maximum work weeks in the shipbuilding and repair industry. The limits were fixed in a code submitted to President Roosevelt for approval, which is expected promptly.

The 32-hour week covers the $238,000,000 naval building program and the 36-hour limit is to apply to other work done in the shipyards. The industry had proposed a 40-hour week and had enlisted the support of the Navy Department in the fight against the 30-hour limit in the recovery law. Labor fought for a 30-hour week.

Decision on the ship code was made in the course of a day replete with activity in all the ramifications of the recovery administration.

Stores Accept Code.

Washington department store executives, meeting at the Merchants and Manufacturers Association offices, agreed to accept the President's volunteer general code of maximum hours and minimum wages.

They plan to make the code effective on August 1, if they can get details of its application worked out by that time. Necessarily broad in its langauge to cover business generally, the code is not so explicit that not more than one interpretation is possible.

Representatives of the District department stores are to confer with recovery officials this morning seeking detailed explanations to make certain the same interpretation will be applied throughout the city.

How much the volunteer code will increase wages and employment in the District mercantile field is problematical. Much will depend on its application. Some of the questions involved are the classification of such employes as tailors and fitters, elevator operators, delivery clerks, and the many other employes engaged in the diversified activities of a large department store.

Calls Meeting Tomorrow.

James E. Colliflower, president of the association, has called a special meeting of its board of directors for tomorrow, when application of the volunteer code is expected to be discussed and approved.

The department store executives are to have another meeting today and are to meet the general managers of the stores Thursday to map out details of the working of the code.

Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the association, said one of the questions the recovery administration would be asked would have to do with the 52-hour week prescribed in the code. That was put in by Gen. Johnson to assure increased employment. It was felt that the purpose of the code might be defeated by a shortening of store hours generally.

Winter hours of local large retail stores are 52½, Mr. Shaw said, but in summer it is customary to close on Saturdays. The code prescribes a 40-hour work week for the individual, although the store hours are fixed at not less than 52.

Members of the department store division of the association comprise the largest employers of retail labor in the city. Other groups are to get together in the next few days to consider the volunteer code, Mr. Shaw said.

Expect Others in Line.

Many retailers are not members of the association. What these will do remains to be seen, but it is expected most, if not all, will fall in line with the larger stores. The volunteer code is expected to be replaced shortly by the code which is being drafted by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. When this is submitted and approved, it will have teeth and can be enforced. The President's volunteer code, on the other hand, is just that, voluntary, and individuals may use their judgment about accepting it.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific store chain already has been placed in the ranks of those accepting the code. The Sanitary Grocery Co. also is expected to join the procession, although it will ask for some modifications permitting their store managers to work longer than the proposed 40 hours. It is believed the managers may be excepted as Roosevelt Requisitions Immediate Help of Employers.

Pleads for Increased Pay and Shorter Hours of Labor.

The full text of President Roosevelt's radio address will be found on Page 2.

By Lawrence Sullivan.

In a second radio report on progress of the New Deal, President Roosevelt appealed to employers and workers last night to unite solidly behind the recovery administration's plan to increase wages and shorten hours of labor.

His appeal was directed alike to the small business man and the great industrial operators.

"I can not guarantee the success of this nation-wide plan, but the people of this country can guarantee its success," the President said in challenging the entire Nation to align itself behind the endeavor.

In his sweeping mobilization appeal, President Roosevelt asked employers in all parts of the country to communicate with him personally at the White House, either by mail or telegraph, if they wish to enlist in the reemployment drive before their industrial codes are ready.

Public Roll of Honor.

He also announced that the postoffice in every city and town soon would be provided with a new role of honor, to carry the names of those employers who are enlisted in the historic prosperity campaign.

"I ask that even before the dates set in the agreements, which we have sent out, the employers of the country who have not already done so—the big fellows and the little fellows—shall at once write or telegraph me at the White House, expressing their intention of going through with the plan," the President said. "And it is my purpose to keep posted in the postoffice of every town a roll of honor of all those who join me."

The great mobilization address was broadcast over two national radio chains from the oval study at the White House. A battery of cameramen were on hand to catch the picture as the Chief Executive dramatically called for an end of the "paralysis of unemployement." Special planes of the Army and Navy roared off from Washington service fields shortly before midnight to speed the news reels to the screens in the principal cities of the Atlantic seaboard.

Opinion and Conscience.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that, although the recovery act clothes Administrator Hugh S. Johnson with ample authority to deal with recalcitrant employers, he appeals chiefly for that cooperation which is inspired by "opinion and conscience."

"These are the only instruments we shall use in this great summer offensive against unemployment. But we shall use them to the limit to protect the willing from the laggard and to make the plan succeed."

As a supplemental agency for inspiring public sentiment in favor of the drive, small honor badges will be provided from Washington to factories and business plants which offer voluntary enlistments.

Badge Held Essential.

"In war, in the gloom of the night attack," the President said in explaining this emblem, "soldiers wear a bright badge on their shoulders to be sure that comrades do not fire on comrades. On this principle, those who cooperate in this program must know each other at a glance. That is why we have provided a badge of honor for this purpose, a simple design with the legend, 'We do our part,' and I ask that all those who join with me shall display that badge prominently. It is essential to our purpose."

Mr. Roosevelt and several of his intimate advisers gave extraordinary care to the preparation of last night's address, the first general accounting on the administration's economic program since a similar radio address May 7. When the text was in final form yesterday afternoon it was carefully gone over by Administrator Johnson and later by Assistant Secretary of State Moley.

In reviewing earlier phases of the national rehabilitation effort, Mr. Roosevelt told his audience that the legislative program of the emergency session of Congress already showed promise of working out successfully. The great objective of this program, he said, was "a more lasting prosperity."

A recital of the outstanding achievements of the administration to date listed the balancing of the operating budget first.

U. S. Extravagant.

"For three years the Government had not lived within its income," Mr. Roosevelt explained. "The immediate task was to bring our regular expenses within our revenues. That has been done."

He then turned to the extraordinary budget, which carries the huge expenditures of the recovery program.

"It may seem inconsistent for a Government to cut down its regular expenses and at the same time to borrow and to spend billions for an emergency. But this is not inconsistent because a large portion of the emergency money has been paid out in the form of sound loans, which will be repaid to the Treasury over a period of years; and to cover the rest of the emergency money we have imposed taxes to pay the interest and the installments on that part of the debt."

Recalling the encouraging restoration of banking since the March crisis, Mr. Roosevelt said that today only about 5 per cent of national bank deposits are tied up by Government restrictions. State banks, which in some notable instances reopened more slowly, are also showing a steady reduction in the volume of restricted deposits.

Beyond an allusion to the home loan and farm mortgage acts, there was no discussion of the administration's monetary policy. In treating the mortgage-relief legislation, Mr. Roosevelt ascribed the difficulties of many individual debtors today to the sharp decline in prices during the last four years.

"The dollar was a different dollar from the one with which the average debt had been incurred."

Emphasizing again that smaller crops offer the ultimate solution of the prevailing disparity of agricultural prices, the President said the farm plans now in operation also promise quick relief.

Success Is Seen.

"I have clearly stated that this method is in a sense experimental, but so far as we have gone we have reason to believe that it will produce good results."

The agreement in the cotton textile code to abolish child labor, the President added, afforded him more personal satisfaction than any other achievement of his administration to date. He recalled for the radio audience the remark of a British commentator, that through a code America had achieved in one day what Great Britain had not been able to accomplish through the common law in 85 years.

"If all employers will act together to shorten hours and raise wages we can put our people back to work," he said. "No employer will suffer, because the relative level of competitive costs will advance by the same amount for all. But if any considerable group should lag or shirk, this great opportunity will pass us by and we will go into another desperate winter. This must not happen."

Young Roosevelts To Tour by Auto

Honeymoon Couple Will Leave for Coast in Next Few Days.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 24 (AP).—After spending four or five days in Fort Worth, Elliott Roosevelt, 22, son of the President, and his bride, the former Miss Ruth Googins, will leave by automobile for Los Angeles. This was stated by the couple today while they were at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Googins, here.

Roosevelt said his business plans are yet undecided, but he has several positions offered him in California. He added, however, that he may locate in Fort Worth.

The Roosevelts arrived by train Sunday night from Burlington, Iowa, where they were married Saturday. They received numerous telegrams of congratulation at the Googins home.

Roosevelt Halts Speech To Clear Frog in Throat

"Where is that glass of water? It is hot in here. I have got a frog in my throat."

These surprising statements came over the radio last night in the midst of President Roosevelt's address—and it was the President speaking. After taking a drink of water, the President resumed his speech.

Text of President Roosevelt's Radio Message Asking Support And Outlining Fundamentals of National Recovery Program

The text of President Roosevelt's radio talk to the Nation last night follows:

After the adjournment of the historical special session of the Congress five weeks ago I purposely refrained from addressing you for two very good reasons.

First, I think that we all wanted the opportunity of a little quiet thought to examine and assimilate in a mental picture the crowding events of the hundred days which had been devoted to the starting of the wheels of the New Deal.

Secondly, I wanted a few weeks in which to set up the new administrative organization and to see the first fruits of our careful planning.

I think it will interest you if I set forth the fundamentals of this planning for national recovery; and this I am very certain will make it abundantly clear to you that all of the proposals and all of the legislation since the fourth day of March have not been just a collection of haphazard schemes but rather the orderly component parts of a connected and logical whole.

U. S. Leadership Needed.

Long before Inauguration Day I became convinced that individual effort and local effort and even disjointed Federal effort had failed and of necessity would fail and, therefore, that a rounded leadership by the Federal Government had become a necessity both of theory and of fact. Such leadership, however, had its beginning in preserving and strengthening the credit of the United States Government, because without that no leadership was a possibility. For years the Government had not lived within its income. The immediate task was to bring our regular expenses within our revenues. That has been done.

It may seem inconsistent for a government to cut down its regular expenses and at the same time to borrow and to spend billions for an emergency. But it is not inconsistent because a large portion of the emergency money has been paid out in the form of sound loans which will be repaid to the Treasury over a period of years; and to cover the rest of the emergency money we have imposed taxes to pay the interest and the instalments on that part of the debt.

So you will see that we have kept our credit good. We have built a granite foundation in a period of confusion. That foundation of the Federal credit system stands there broad and sure. It is the base of the whole recovery plan.

Then came the part of the problem that concerned the credit of the individual citizens themselves. You and I know of the banking crisis and of the great danger to the savings of our people. On March sixth every national bank was closed. One month later 90 per cent of the deposits in the national banks had been made available to the depositors. Today only about 5 per cent of the deposits in national banks are still tied up. The condition relating to State banks, while not quite so good on a percentage basis, is showing a steady reduction in the total of frozen deposits—a result much better than we had expected three months ago.

Credit Perplexing.

The problem of the credit of the individual was made more difficult because of another fact. The dollar was a different dollar from the one with which the average debt had been incurred. For this reason large numbers of people were actually losing possession of and title to their farms and homes. All of you know the financial steps which have been taken to correct this inequality. In addition the home loan act, the farm loan act and the bankruptcy act were passed.

It was a vital necessity to restore purchasing power by reducing the debt and interest charges upon our people, but while we were helping people to save their credit it was at the same time absolutely essential to do something about the physical needs of hundreds of thousands who were in dire straits at that very moment. Municipal and State aid were being stretched to the limit. We appropriated half a billion dollars to supplement their efforts and in addition, as you know, we have put 300,000 young men into practical and useful work in our forests and to prevent flood and soil erosion. The wages they earn are going in greater part to the support of the nearly one million people who constitute their families.

In this same classification we can properly place the great public works program running to a total of over Three Billion Dollars—to be used for highways and ships and flood prevention and inland navigation and thousands of self-sustaining State and municipal improvements. Two points should be made clear in the alloting and administration of these projects—first, we are using the utmost care to choose labor-creating quick-acting, useful projects, avoiding the smell of pork barrel; and secondly, we are hoping that at least half of the money will come back to the government from projects which will pay for themselves over a period of years.

Lasting Prosperity.

Thus far I have spoken primarily of the foundation stones—the measures that were necessary to reestablish credit and to head people in the opposite direction by preventing distress and providing as much work as possible through governmental agencies. Now I come to the links which will build us a more lasting prosperity. I have said that we cannot attain that in a nation half boom and half broke. If all of our people have work and fair wages and fair profits, they can buy the products of their neighbors and business is good. But if you take away the wages and the profits of half of them, business is only half as good. It doesn't help much if the fortunate half is very prosperous—the best way is for everybody to be reasonably prosperous.

For many years the two great barriers to a normal prosperity have been low farm prices and the creeping paralysis of unemployment. These factors have cut the purchasing power of the country in half. I promised action. Congress did its part when it passed the farm and the industrial recovery acts. Today we are putting these two acts to work and they will work if people understand their plain objectives.

First the farm act: It is based on the fact that the purchasing power of nearly half our population depends on adequate prices for farm products. We have been producing more of some crops than we consume or can sell in a depressed world market. The cure is not to produce so much. Without our help the farmers can not get together and cut production, and the farm bill gives them a method of bringing their production down to a reasonable level and of obtaining reasonable prices for their crops. I have clearly stated that this method is in a sense experimental, but so far as we have gone we have reason to believe that it will produce good results.

It is obvious that if we can greatly increase the purchasing power of the tens of millions of our people who make a living from farming and the distribution of farm crops, we will greatly increase the consumption of those goods which are turned out by industry.

Bringing Back Industry.

That brings me to the final step—bringing back industry along sound lines.

Last autumn, on several occasions, I expressed my faith that we can make possible by democratic self-discipline in industry general increases in wages and shortening of hours sufficient to enable industry to pay its own workers enough to let those workers buy and use the things that their labor produces. This can be done only if we permit and encourage cooperative action in industry because it is obvious that without united action a few selfish men in each competitive group will pay starvation wages and insist on long hours of work. Others in that group must either follow suit or close up shop. We have seen the result of action of that kind in the continuing descent into the economic hell of the past four years.

There is a clear way to reverse that process: If all employers in each competitive group agree to pay their workers the same wages—reasonable wages—and require the same hours—reasonable hours—then higher wages and shorter hours will hurt no employer. Moreover, such action is better for the employer than unemployment and low wages, because it makes more buyers for his product. That is the simple idea which is the very heart of the industrial recovery act.

Must Act in Group.

On the basis of this simple principle of everybody doing things together, we are starting out on this nationwide attack on unemployment. It will succeed if our people understand it—in the big industries, in the little shops, in the great cities and in the small villages. There is nothing complicated about it and there is nothing particularly new in the principle. It goes back to the basic idea of society and of the Nation itself that people acting in a group can accomplish things which no individual acting alone could even hope to bring about.

Here is an example. In the Cotton Textile Code and in other agreements already signed, child labor has been abolished. That makes me personally happier than any other one thing with which I have been connected since I came to Washington. In the textile industry—an industry which came to me spontaneously and with a splendid cooperation as soon as the recovery act was signed—child labor was an old evil. But no employer acting alone was able to wipe it out. If one employer tried it, or if one State tried it, the costs of operation rose so high that it was impossible to compete with the employers or States which had failed to act. The moment the Recovery Act was passed, this monstrous thing which neither opinion nor law could reach through years of effort went out in a flash. As a British editorial put it, we did more under a code in one da than they in England had been able to do under the common law in 85 years of effort. I use this incident, my friends, not to boast of what has already been done but to point the way to you for even greater cooperative efforts this summer and autumn.

Praises Endurance.

We are not going through another winter like the last. I doubt if ever any people so bravely and cheerfully endured a season half so bitter. We can not ask America to continue to face such needless hardships. It is time for courageous action, and the recovery bill gives us the means to conquer unemployment with exactly the same weapon that we have used to strike down child labor.

The proposition is simply this:

If all employers will act together to shorten hours and raise wages, we can put people back to work. No employer will suffer, because the relative level of competitive cost will advance by the same amount for all. But if any considerable group should lag or shirk, this great opportunity will pass us by and we will go into another desperate winter. This must not happen.

We have sent out to all employers an agreement which is the result of consultation. This agreement checks against the voluntary codes of nearly all the large industries which have already been submitted. This blanket agreement carries the unanimous approval of the three boards which I have appointed to advice in this, boards representing the great leaders in labor, industry and in social service.

The agreement already has brought a flood of approval from every State and from so wide a cross-section of the common calling of industry that I know it is fair for all. It is a plan—deliberate, reasonable and just—intended to put into effect at once the most important of the broad principles which are being established, industry by industry, through codes. Naturally, it takes a good deal of organizing and a great many hearings and many months to get these codes perfected and signed, and we can not wait for all of them to go through. The blanket agreements, however, which I am sending to every employer will start the wheels turning now and not six months from now.

To Punish Selfish.

There are, of course, men, a few of whom might thwart this great common purpose by seeking selfish advantage. There are adequate penalties in the law, but I am now asking the cooperation that comes from opinion and from conscience. These are the only instruments we shall use in this great summer offensive against unemployment. But we shall use them to the limit to protect the willing from the laggard and to make the plan succeed.

In war, in the gloom of night attack, soldiers wear a bright badge on their shoulders to be sure that comrades do not fire on comrades. On that principle, those who cooperate in this program must know each other at a glance. That is why we have provided a badge of honor for this purpose, a simple design with a legend, "We do our part," and I ask that all those who join with me shall display that badge prominently. It is essential to our purpose.

Already all the great, basic industries have come forward willingly with proposed codes, and in these codes they accept the principles leading to mass reemployment. But important as is this heartening demonstration, the richest field for results is among the small employers, those whose contribution will give new work for from 1 to 10 people. These smaller employers are indeed a vital part of the backbone of the country, and the success of our plans lies largely in their hands.

Employers Rallying.

Already the telegrams and letters are pouring into the White House—messages from employers who ask that their names be placed on this special roll of honor. They represent great corporations and companies, and partnerships and individuals. I ask that even before the dates set in the agreements which we have sent out, the employers of the country who have not already done so—the big fellows and the little fellows—shall at once write or telegraph to me personally at the White House, expressing their intention of going through with the plan. And it is my purpose to keep posted in the postoffice of every town a roll of honor of all those who join with me.

I want to take this occasion to say to the 24 governors who are now in conference in San Francisco, that nothing thus far has helped in strengthening this great movement more than their resolutions adopted at the very outset of their meeting, giving this plan their instant and unanimous approval, and pledging to support it in their States.

To the men and women whose lives have been darkened by the fact or the fear of unemployment, I am justified in saying a word of encouragement because the codes and the agreements already approved, or about to be passed upon, prove that the plan does raise wages, and that it does put people back to work. You can look on every employer who adopts the plan as one who is doing his part, and those employers deserve well of everyone who works for a living. It will be clear to you, as it is to me, that while the shirking employer may undersell his competitor, the saving he thus makes is made at the expense of his country's welfare.

Pleads for Harmony.

While we are making this great common effort there should be no discord and dispute. This is no time to cavil or to question the standard set by this universal agreement. It is time for patience and understanding and cooperation. The workers of this country have rights under this law which can not be taken from them, and nobody will be permitted to whittle them away but, on the other hand, no aggression is now necessary to attain those rights. The whole country will be united to get them for you. The principle that applies to the employers applies to the workers as well, and I ask you workers to cooperate in the same spirit.

When Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory," died, someone asked, "Will he go to heaven," and the answer was, "He will if he wants to." If I am asked whether the American people will pull themselves out of this depression, I answer, "They will if they want to." The essence of the plan is a universal limitation of hours of work per week for any individual by common consent, and a universal payment of wages above a minimum, also by common consent. I can not guarantee the success of this Nation-wide plan, but the people of this country can guarantee its success. I have no faith in "cure-alls," but I believe that we can greatly influence economic forces. I have no sympathy with the professional economists who insist that things must run their course and that human agencies can have no influence on economic ills. One reason is that I happen to know that professional economists have changed their definition of economic laws every five or ten years for a very long time, but I do have faith, and retain faith, in the strength of common purpose, and in the strength of unified action taken by the American people.

That is why I am describing to you the simple purposes and the solid foundations upon which our program of recovery is built. That is why I am asking the employers of the Nation to sign this common covenant with me—to sign it in the name of patriotism and humanity. That is why I am asking the workers to go along with us in a spirit of understanding and of helpfulness.

Bolivar's Birth Is Observed Here

Pan-American Union Fete Hears Messages Read by Envoys.

The memory of Simon Bolivar, South American patriot, who liberated the Northern Republics of that continent, was honored yesterday at ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of his birth.

Exercises in the Hall of Patriots, Pan American Union, were opened by Dr. J. Varela, minister of Uruguay, acting chairman of the Pan-American governing board. Wreath laying ceremonies at the marble bust of Bolivar were followed by the reading of messages from presidents of the six Bolivarian countries.

Ambassadors and ministers from the various countries read the messages.

Honoring William D. Medley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the House of Delegates from Arlington County, "William D. Medley" night program was held last night at the Ashton Heights Women's Club, under the auspices of the Young Democratic Club of Arlington County.

In a brief address, Mr. Medley advocated a reduction in the automobile tax, but contended the reduction should be in keeping with the needs for road construction and maintenance. He also declared himself as opposed to the fee system in county and State government.

J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, the guest speaker, lauded President Roosevelt for his efforts for economic recovery.

The District Grocery Stores, Inc., intends to accept the code pending submission and approval of the code being prepared by the National Retail Grocers Association. The same thing was said of the United Food Stores. Liggett's drug stores, another large retail chain in Washington, will await decision of the New York headquarters. The Whelan chain is expected to adopt the code. Peoples Drug Stores will accept the code and employ several hundred more persons.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. is going to abide by the provisions of the volunteer code, Charles Clagett, assistant to the general manager of the company, said.

Phone Company to Help.

The purpose of the local telephone company to cooperate with the recovery program also was made clear by J. A. Remon, general manager.

"We have every intention of cooperating with the Government to the fullest extent," Mr. Remon said. "The telephone business has been conducted in accordance with the principles of the recovery act for some period of time. What effect the application of the code will have on the telephone business here in Washington I can not say at this time."

The Independent Taxicab Owners Association is preparing a code which will call for installation of meters in cabs. The cab owners say existing flat rates do not permit drivers to earn a decent living. Other large employers of labor, including the street car and bus companies, are studying the application of the President's general code to their particular businesses.

The American Federation of Labor yesterday formally accepted the volunteer code. William Green, president, signed the pledge at a meeting with Gen. Johnson. The wage and hour schedule is to become effective at once.

Many messages of approval and acceptance continued to pour into the White House, and the Recovery Administration offices yesterday, from all sections. A national day of prayer was proposed by the Atonement Episcopal Church, of Brooklyn.

Work on Local Boards.

Work progressed on the selection and appointment of the State and other local boards which are to be set up as a part of the national organization to assure quick and widespread acceptance of the code.

Action of Gen. Johnson on the shipbuilding code was only one of his decisions in favor of shorter working schedules. He asked the President to approve a 32-hour week on naval construction and repair and a 36-hour week on other work in private yards. The limitations were accepted by the representatives of the industry after several lengthy and, at times, rather warm conferences.

Characterizing the wage and work week schedules of the lumber industry as unsatisfactory, Gen. Johnson refused to give that code his approval and told the lumber representatives to boost wages and shorten hours more than they proposed.

Public hearings on the complicated and fighting oil industry were begun. Like the lumber industry, the oil men want machinery established to control production. Both involve natural resources of vast importance. There is sharp disagreement over the method of control. Some oil men have proposed a national dictator.

Gen. Johnson, at the outset of the hearings, discouraged that idea with a few blunt words. The question involved was one of cooperation and not dictatorship, he told the industry. Smaller independents contend that the code submitted by the American Petroleum Institute favored the large companies and tended to monopoly. President Roosevelt already has issued an executive order forbidding interstate transportation of oil produced in violation of State regulations. Gen. Johnson ordered day and night sessions until the oil code hearings are concluded.

Wool Industry Code Up.

Hearings were pushed, too, on the code submitted by the wool industry, providing minimum wages of $13 and $14 for South and North, respectively. Labor representatives insist on a 30-hour work week and want an $18 minimum wage.

That the recovery administration is going to have a hard row to hoe has been indicated clearly. Many large employers, including some who have been notoriously opposed to organized labor, are fearful that the recovery law may give labor too much power. They are determined that it shall not and are seeking means to forestall such an eventuality.

The steel industry code contains provisions labor regards as directly and expressly forbidding organizing activities and setting up as something sacred the company-controlled unions the employers are fostering. There have been many complaints that employers are discriminating against union members in readjusting their personnel. Gen. Johnson has said that he has not received complaints on this score, but subordinate officials are cognizant of the situation and Dr. Leo Wollman, head of the labor advisory board, agreed there was an apparent anti-union movement in some quarters. The situation will be laid before Gen. Johnson immediately, the board decided.

Market Parley Studies Grain Speculation

Traders Seek Price Stability In Grain Code

Leaders, Starting Draft, Hope to Reduce Large Scale Speculation.

(Associated Press.)

Representative of the Nation's grain exchanges, prompted by demands of farm administrators that they "clean house," began drafting a code of competition yesterday aimed to assure greater future stability of grain prices and to reduce large scale speculation.

Pending completion of a master code for the grain industry and supplemental codes for its various branches, including exchanges, representatives of the markets said emergency regulations already instituted at the suggestion of Secretary Wallace would be continued in effect.

These include fixing of the minimum price at which grain can be traded in at the closing prices of last Thursday, and limits on daily fluctuations. The daily limit as finally determined, will be 8 cents a bushel a day for wheat and 5 cents for corn.

Peek Gives Warning.

Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, who is taking part in the conference of the grain industry called by farm administrators, after telephone conversations with officials of the Chicago Board at the close of the market said a large volume of distressed holdings of grain was liquidated today.

A warning to the exchanges that administrators were prepared to prescribe a code for it should its voluntary efforts fail was made by George N. Peek, chief administrator, who said that a recurrence of the widely fluctuating prices of last week would not be tolerated, and that greater stability of prices was essential to protect the interest of farmers whose grain is now flowing rapidly into the markets.

Peek instructed the group to determine the cause of the sharp fall in prices last Wednesday and Thursday which resulted in a crisis that led to the suspension of futures trading on Friday and Saturday.

President Is Interested.

Secretary Wallace, who joined the conference briefly, told the conferees that President Roosevelt "is especially interested in your efforts to solve the problems in the grain trade and the President is especially anxious that the movement of values proceed in an orderly fashion."

Charles J. Brand, coadministrator, told the group that the Nation "is not going to invest more than $100,000,000 in production control and let the marketing of grain go on in the same old way."

The task of drafting the code was placed in the hands of a committee representing the grain exchanges. It is to report to the general conference today.

Bike Thieves Bane Of Foreign Police

New York, July 24 (AP).—European police officials here for the International Police Conference in Chicago disclosed today that petty crimes, such as bicycle thefts, are the principal bane of their existence.

"Kidnapings!" One of them responded to a query. "We haven't any. Racketeering? We don't know what it is."

Commissioner K. H. Broekhaff, of Amsterdam, said the bicycle thief was his chief problem.

Chief Constable Roderick Ross, of Edinburgh, said his people were so law abiding a force of 821 men was sufficient to police that city of 500,000.

Brief Filed in Support of $425,000 Loan to Chesapeake Road.

Backed by a favorable decision of the United States Supreme Court and two separate rulings by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday filed a brief with the Public Works Administration asking for a loan of $425,000 to the Chesapeake Beach Railway to establish a new ferry service across Chesapeake Bay.

Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, who drew up the brief, asserted that the only obstacles in the path of the establishment of the new service are selfish political interests in Maryland. The present service is in the control of a group of Maryland politicians, including former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, who is president of the opposing company, and John M. Dennis, State treasurer of Maryland, who is vice president, the Chamber of Commerce head declared.

The Chesapeake Beach Railway made its first efforts to operate a ferry service on December 29, 1929. Approval was given several months later by the I. C. C. The Supreme Court upheld the order of the commission when the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. intervened.

However, when the litigation was finally concluded, financial backers of the Chesapeake Beach Railway had suffered from the depression and were unable to proceed with the project. A loan was sought from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The I. C. C. again entered the picture, approving the loan. While the application was under consideration, Congress provided for the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works. The Chesapeake Beach Railway was advised that the funds should come from this source.

The railway estimates cost of the new ferry service to be $737,522. The railway would furnish $312,500. The expenditure would include dredging, boats, docks, piers, sites, &c.

The new service would add 40 miles to the Washington trading area and would bring the Eastern Shore region of Maryland and Virginia considerably closer to the District and southern Maryland, it is pointed out. The new service would be 20 miles south of the present one on the eastern side of the bay and 30 miles south on the western side, linking Chesapeake Beach and Hudson, Md.

Firemen Will Permit Trade Floats in Line

Artistic Design Alone Is Qualification Placed Upon Entries.

Commercial floats, providing they are artistic in design and execution, will be allowed in this year's National Firemen's Labor Day parade, the committee has decided.

Washington business houses will be given the opportunity to enter a commercial division of the outdoor pageant, but only after a special committee passes on the merit of the entries. Several local merchants have already written the committee requesting that they be given permission to enter floats.

By allowing business concerns to take part in the celebration, the firemen hope much additional color will be lent the parade. This is the intention all along the line this year in trying to promote the biggest parade ever held in the Capital.

It has been pointed out to the firefighters that one of the most significant parades in the world—the Parade of Roses in California, is made possible by merchants and civic organizations, but chiefly the commercial enterprises.

Concerns wishing to enter the parade should contact Sergt. A. J. Bargagni through the District Fire Department as soon as possible. Time is limited and a restriction will be placed on the number of merchants who will take part.

A registration fee, to help the firemen with their parade and celebration, will be charged concerns entering commercial floats. It will be a small amount and will go directly to the parade fund, which helps District firemen and their brothers throughout the country make the Labor Day parade the biggest firemen's celebration in America.

Finished with its prize list, the committee has announced that more than $1,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to winners of the various events in the parade. This is in addition to the prizes that will be given in the bicycle and roller skating sweepstakes, immediately preceeding the parade.

Forty-five trophies will go to lucky contestants this year also.

edits. On the front page were several illustrations of followers of his beliefs.

"I've completely sold out," he smiled, "but I have this copy which I was saving for a friend, left. Would anyone like to look at it?"

There was a general movement toward the end of the room.

"Now," said Livingston, "are there any questions?"

The first one—from a blonde young lady in the front row—left little doubt about the impression the Nudist was making with his meeting.

"Where is the closest colony to Washington?" she asked.

Livingston said he didn't know, but he thought there was one near the District. He explained he read about it in an afternoon paper. Someone near the rear of the room rose and stated it was a mistake about that one. She said it stood for sun baths and nudity only in privacy.

"Then let's get up one," someone suggested.

"All right," said the nudist; "hold up your hands all of you who would go in for it."

The detective sergeant and the firemen didn't hold up theirs, but most of the ladies and the man with the clairnet did.

From the looks on the faces of some who were sweltering in the crowded room, they would have gone in for it right then, if Livingston had said the word.

The meeting ended with plans being made for a local nudist colony being discussed by one group, and the other handing in their names to the speaker as subscribers for his magazine.

Post Primps in New Shoes

That's His Preparation for New York's Great Welcome Tomorrow; Quit Flying? "When I Die," He Replies.

New York, July 24 (AP).—Wiley Post made one concession today to the great public welcome planned for him Wednesday—he went out and bought a new pair of shoes.

But as for resting, the Oklahoma aviator insisted he was quite rested "when I got out of the plane" Saturday night at the end of his record trip around the world.

In an interview Post gave his views on the future of aviation. He saw steel cabin planes flying 800 miles an hour, at altitudes up to 45,000 feet, with some device to keep ice from forming on their wings—planes would go any where, any time, in any kind of weather.

He thought regular flying schedules between the United States and Tokyo, Japan, would be feasible within a few years.

The flier said his plane, the Winnie Mae, was in "fine condition" and capable of making three trips like its last one. Would he give it to a museum?

"I wouldn't give it to anybody," he replied.

"Are you going to quit flying?"

"What's that?"

"Are you going to quit flying?"

"When I die."

19 Million More To Create Jobs Allotted by U.S.

Public Building Money Goes for Postoffices in Nine States.

(Associated Press.)

A $19,851,648 allotment of public works funds to create more jobs, including $6,971,648 for Federal buildings, was announced yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

It brought total allotments from the $3,300,000,000 public works appropriation to $773,802,836 since the law's enactment a little over a month ago.

The public building money went to fourteen postoffices in nine States. The rest of today's distribution included:

Six million dollars for 23 War Department ordnance establishments, which Ickes said would retain 7,122 employes on the pay roll.

Five million dollars for soil erosion work under the Agriculture Department, to be allotted to States in proportion to their cultivated areas as shown by the 1930 census.

One million, five hundred and fifty-five thousand to complete flood control dams on the Winooska River in Vermont.

Three hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars for the Panama Canal Zone.

"The board adopted a resolution," the Secretary said, "that it was the sense of the board that in local projects local labor be used as far as possible, and that as far as possible building material, stone and so forth, of that State and area be used.

"The board also resolved that no projects approved by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can come before this board until the R. F. C. has rescinded its approval, and then the projects must be submitted to the State boards."

Regarding the use of local labor and materials, Ickes said clauses probably would be written into contracts stating this to be the Government's policy, but that the price factor would enter into its application.

U. S. Falls in Line In Creating Jobs

civilian employes of the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., 284 at the Curtis Bay Ordnance Depot, South Baltimore, Md., and 119 at the Nansemond Ordnance Depot, Portsmouth, Va., were saved by the Public Works Administration's allotment of $6,000,000 to the War Department yesterday. Altogether, 23 establishments of the Ordnance Department were benefited.

The establishments "otherwise might have been forced to close, throwing more than 7,000 employes out of work," a statement from the Federal Emergency Administration disclosed. "They had been on a 4-day week since July 1, with their future depending on a Public Works allotment."

Other Agencies Hopeful.

The War and Agricultural Departments are only two of several Federal agencies hoping to limit dismissals and rehire ousted workers by drawing on the $3,300,000,000 National Recovery fund.

With these developments, the Government's internal program began to trend definitely away from recent personnel slashing policies.

Chairman William Stevenson, of the Home Loan Bank Board, yesterday expressed hearty concurrence in the President's view that ousted civil service workers should be given preference in the new emergency agencies.

He said the board is not calling on the Civil Service Commission for names, but where workers with civil service status apply, their civil service standing is "valuable" to them.

Roper Backs President.

Meanwhile, the National Civil Reform League called on the President yesterday "to require the nomination of the person standing highest on every eligible list for Presidential postmaster, and thus make sure that political considerations in making appointments are minimized."

Final decision on whether married workers earning limited salaries whose mates are in the Federal service, may be reemployed in the new emergency agencies, was delayed yesterday when the National Industrial Recovery Board postponed its scheduled meeting until tomorrow.

A letter from Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of the board, echoing the President's reemployment views, was made public by Chairman Harry B. Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission.

Pit "Mystery Man" Ruled Off Board

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—Edward A. Crawford, of New York, "mystery man" of the grain trading pits, today was suspended by the Chicago Board of Trade.

While board officials gave as reasons for the suspension Crawford's "inability to meet obligations," financial circles buzzed with tales of a giant speculative pyramid erected swiftly and broken abruptly.

The Daily News said Crawford was the man Secretary of Agriculture Wallace referred to as having been "long" 13,000,000 bushels of corn when commodity markets slumped sharply last Thursday.

Building Loan Groups to Aid Home Owners

Stephenson Says Insurance Companies Are Expected to Join.

Building and loan associations are falling in line with the program of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and the insurance companies are expected to give cooperative response very soon, William F. Stephenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said yesterday at a press conference.

Cooperation from building and loan associations is of more importance than response from any other loaning agency, as the loan associations hold $6,540,000,000 in mortgages, Mr. Stephenson said.

"We could spend all the money at our disposal redeeming the building and loan association loans," he pointed out. "Only $2,000,000,000 worth of the mortgages are held by the insurance companies, and $3,500,000,000 by the savings banks. I find that the building and loan associations are showing a willingness to accept our bonds, and I expect a change in attitude from the insurance companies."

District Meeting Today.

This statement from the chairman represents the first public one made by an official of the Home Loan Bank Board since reports that building and loan associations and insurance companies would not accept the bonds of the corporation were published in The Washington Post last week.

The District Council of Building and Loan Associations will discuss the program of the loan corporation at a meeting, at 12:30 p. m. today, at the Raleigh Hotel.

In a radio talk last night, Mr. Stephenson declared that eligible loans by the corporation are expected to be scaled to $7,500,000,000.

"We believe, however," he added, "that at least half of the holders will realize their investment is good and will carry the owners, while the property is advancing and the upward swing in business will enable the debtors to resume payments and thereby finance themselves.

Failed Banks Problem.

"One of the serious problems," Mr. Stephenson continued, "is financing home mortgages, held by receivers, conservators and liquidators of failed or restricted banks. Most of these have already authority to scale debts and accept bonds for them, or can readily secure such authority."

The chairman observed that if all mortgagees refuse to accept the bonds and demand cash, it will defeat the work, as $200,000,000 in cash will only go a little way toward relieving the situation.

The loan board will receive recommendations today for a headquarters location for the District office from Charles A. Jones, local manager. Mr. Jones said yesterday that he expected to be in a position to make a definite recommendation.

Holders Urged To Take Bonds For Mortgages

(Associated Press.)

Holders of mortgages on American homes were urged last night by William F. Stevenson, chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, to exchange them for bonds of the $2,200,000,000 Federal corporation.

In an address he explained that if all the mortgage holders insisted on being paid in currency the corporation's cash fund of $200,000,000 "will go only a little way toward relieving the situation."

"The general acceptance of the bonds will do a wonderful work and assist to a remarkable degree the recovery of business, the stability of the home and the preservation of civilization," he added.

"If the mortgagee will just consider the situation he will be in, if such recovery shall not occur, I am sure he will give favorable consideration to my plea and join hands with the President to accomplish this most laudable aim, probably the most humanitarian and most far reaching in importance of any of the wonderful moves which he has projected in this stupendous work he is doing to rehabilitate the prostrate business structure of the premier Nation of the world."

Mr. Stevenson said it will cost the Government $20,000,000 a year to bring aid to the distressed home owners of the Nation through the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

This money, he explained, will be spent for salaries and expenses.

Services Are Held For Drowned Boy

Mother Steps on Body in Water at Riva Beach, Finds It's Her Son.

Little John Piron, whose body was found by his mother in the waters off Riva Beach, was buried yesterday in St. Mary's Cemetery, Annapolis.

His mother, Mrs. John L. Piron, who lives at 220 H street northwest, stepped upon a body while wading and had the frightful experience of identifying it as that of her 6-year-old son.

The Pirons have a summer home at Sylvan Shores in Anne Arundel County, Md. The father is a waiter at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mother and son were members of a bathing party. The boy could not swim. He had been using an inflated tire tube while paddling about. No one saw the lad disappear. Mrs. Piron came upon the body. Artificial respiration methods failed. Dr. J. J. Murphy pronounced the boy dead of a heart attack.

500 Arrested In Antirevolt Raids in Spain

Azana Sees Plot Nipped as Women and Priests are Held; One Slain.

Madrid, July 24 (U.P.).—Premier Manuel Azana's powerful republican regime dealt another shattering blow at revolutionists in Spain today, arresting probably more than 500 persons in scores of raids to break up an antigovernment plot said to involve both Fascista and Syndicalists. One person was killed in a clash at Ballobar.

"The movement is ended," Premier Azana announced tonight in informing the press of the results of the raids to break up the plot. "So far the minister of interior has not given me details, but I understand the plot had ramifications throughout Spain.

Coincident with the raids, a court-martial wrote finis to the monarchise revolutionary outbreak of August, 1932, by sentencing a dozen of the rebel leaders, including the famous Gen. Jose Cavalcanti y Albuquerque, Marquess of Albequerque, to varying terms of imprisonment. Gen. Cavalcanti must serve ten years.

The government began its offensive against Fascist-Syndical-its elements over the week-end, and by tonight had made hundreds of arrests in all of the larger cities. In search of suspects the homes of noted journalists, lawyers, priests and politicians were entered.

There were many women and priests among those seized.

Two more serious reports of violence came from Ballobar, where civil guards dissolved a mob after a clash, and from Jerez de la Frontera, where a bomb exploded in a public hall, causing some damage.

250 at Hyattsville Ask Home Loans

Owners Rush Office on First Day for Aid; One Seeks $21 to Save Place.

With the opening of the Home Owners Loan Corporation offices in Hyattsville yesterday, more than 250 applicants rushed to take advantage of the opportunity to save their homes from mortgage foreclosure.

The most striking example of this desire, it was pointed out by John L. Peyton, regional manager, was the case of one man who asked for a loan of $21. The property, the application stated, was valued at $1,300 and the small amount must be had by Saturday to save it.

At the close of the day one foreclosure had already been forestalled. This was a piece of property, valued at $2,800, in Tuxedo, Md. An application for a loan had been made earlier in the day.

"One of the greatest difficulties we encounter," Mr. Peyton said, "is that of educating the people to the purposes of the office and for what they can apply. One woman, for instance, has made an application for $4,000 cash on a $2,800 property."

Washington Man Hurt In Waldorf, Md., Crash

Two persons were injured in an automobile smash-up in Waldorf, Md., yesterday. Robert Waters, of Marberry, Md., the driver of one car, suffered a fractured skull and possible internal injuries.

Countess, Wife Of Washington Writer, Is Dead

Month's Illness Is Fatal to New York Girl, Bride of Fumasoni-Biondi.

Countess Fumasoni-Biondi, wife of Count Leoni Fumasoni-Biondi, Washington correspondent of the Stefani News Agency, died at Garfield Hospital about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, after an illness of a month. The countess was taken to the hospital in June and recently it was found necessary to operate on her.

Before her marriage the countess was Miss Mary McGuire, of New York. She had met the count in Italy while traveling with her family. The two met again in New York, where the count had come as a writer for magazines and papers, and where they were married. Then the count was sent to Washington in his present capacity. They have lived at 1726 Nineteenth street northwest.

The count is a nephew of the former apostolic delegate to Washington of the Roman Catholic Church, Cardinal Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been made, but it is believed burial will be in New York.

Grain Program For Maryland Is Discussed

Preparing to carry out the Government's program for reducing wheat acreage, State agents from the entire Western Shore of Maryland met yesterday at the University of Maryland to discuss the problem.

Dr. Thomas B. Symons, director of the university's extension service, has been authorized by the Federal Government to carry out the program in the State.

"Steps have been taken," Dr. Symons said, "for formation of a State wheat advisory committee to assist in developing plans especially adapted to Maryland conditions.

"Members of farm organizations, such as the Farm Bureau and Grange, have been asked to serve on this committee and it is hoped Gov. Ritchie will be able to sit with the committee in going over preliminary plans for the campaign.

In the opinion of Dr. Symons, Maryland wheat growers will respond readily to the proposal to give cash payments on three crops, in return for agreements to reduce production. The farmers are to receive 54 per cent of the average for the last 3 years' crops.

G. O. P. Women Told of Strides In Free State

Baltimore Leader Urges Chevy Chase Rally to Seek Unity.

"The minority party, always a stabilizing influence in our form of government, has gained almost enough strength to overthrow the monarchy that has ruled Maryland for the last 14 years," declared Wendell D. Allen, chairman of the Republican city committee of Baltimore, yesterday before a quarterly meeting of the State Federation of Republican Women of Maryland.

Charges that the "superhighway" around Baltimore, as proposed by the Maryland State Roads Commission, is not a direct route, and that the first unit will be useless until the entire project is completed, were voiced yesterday by Mr. Allen. A shorter line, Mr. Allen said, lies to the southeast of the plan proposed at present.

More than 200 women, almost half of whom were from Baltimore, attended the State-wide summer rally held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Galen L. Tait, 4900 Western avenue, Chevy Chase, Md.

Unity of Women Urged.

Unity of party organization throughout the State, involving the mobilization of Republican women in every precinct, was the chief subject.

Other speakers on the program included William Tyler Page, author of the "American Creed" and minority clerk in the House of Representatives; Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State central committee; Mrs. Calvin N. Gabriel, Republican national committeewoman from Maryland; Mrs. Margaret D'Unger, chairman of the City Federation of Republican Women of Baltimore.

Other Speeches Made.

Mrs. Lula E. Powell, president of the State Federation of Republican Women, presided over the meeting. Linwood L. Clark, leading Republican of Anne Arundel, and George B. Burrows, of Baltimore, also made short talks.

New officers will be elected at the next meeting in October.

Representatives of Montgomery County were: Mrs. John A. Holmes, Rockville; Mrs. C. W. Mitchell, Silver Spring, chairman of the Montgomery County federation; Mrs. Edward W. Koch, Silver Spring, former county chairman; Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Edgemoor; Mrs. Milton Bancroft, Sandy Spring; Mrs. Joseph Tilton, Sandy Spring; Mrs. Franklin Getzendanner, Beane; Mrs. John C. Keele, Mrs. Rose Wilson, and Mrs. W. B Johnson, all of Silver Spring, and Mrs. A. F. Lingle, Mrs. Harry Houston, Mrs. J. N. Kauffman, Mrs. L. V. Lampson, and Mrs. D. Findlay, all of Takoma.

Back to the Land.

A conference will be held on Wednesday to work out plans for the administration's back-to-the-land movement. Congress set aside $25,000,000 of the public works fund for this purpose. Its aim was to aid in the "redistribution of the overbalance of population in industrial centers." Apparently Congress acted on the theory that some men who are now unemployed in large cities will not again be able to find jobs there. The back-to-the-land movement is designed to help families in this predicament to become self-supporting.

It is a mistake to regard this movement as a new experiment in farming. It is not conceivable that the Government would foster the development of new farms with public money while it is preparing to reward farmers for the destruction of about 10,000,000 acres of cotton. Experts of the Department of Agriculture have pointed out that a large scale movement of the unemployed back to farming would be a step toward the development of an American agricultural peasantry.

In view of this situation Congress limited the use of this fund to "making loans for and otherwise aiding in the purchase of subsistence homesteads." Yet this conception of the project that is about to be launched also raises difficulties. The $25,000,000 is supposed to be a revolving fund to be lent to city families moving back to the land. How can such loans be repaid unless the new farmers raise produce for the market in competition with their neighbors who are in the business of supplying the Nation with food and other raw materials?

Still other complicated problems must be faced. Subsistence farming may satisfy destitute workmen while the country is in the throes of depression. But it is not in the nature of an American family to be satisfied with raising its own food, fuel and other bare necessities of life. If this project is to be worked out on a permanent basis, its promoters must consider ways and means by which families so rehabilitated may obtain cash for clothing, household necessities, education of their children, &c. It seems inevitable that these necessities should lead families on subsistence farms into the production of marketable crops.

The conference which is scheduled to work out the policy of the back-to-the-land movement faces a dilemma of no small proportions.

Hindenburg's Authority.

The aged hero, President of the Reich, Paul von Hindenburg, has played so inconspicuous a part in the stirring events which have taken place in Germany since Hitler was elevated to his dictatorial position that considerable confusion has resulted as to what powers are still retained by the executive. In brief, while the March Enabling Act curtailed various executive functions, the Weimar constitution has not been entirely abrogated, and under its authority the president still retains important prerogatives.

It is questionable, however, whether the personal popularity of the field marshal does not remain his greatest hold upon the German people if a question of dominance should arise between the executive and his chancellor. Hindenburg received 5,000,000 more votes than Hitler at the last election. What the result would be in a similar electoral test today would depend on the unknown quantity as to the balance between the prestige which the chancellor achieved and the resentments his actions have engendered.

As president, Hindenburg is still commander of the army and navy. This includes, of course, the highly trained and efficient force of 100,000 composing the Reichswehr. German opinion is somewhat at odds as to whether, in case of a break, the loyalty of this army might be divided between the president and the governing cabinet head. The attitude of this important military body would be of great significance. The cabinet now enjoys the former executive privilege of drafting laws and, in the absence of the Reichstag, governs by decrees which are promulgated by the chancellor.

The cabinet ministers are still nominated by the president, and as he named Hitler to the chancellorship he still retains the authority to dismiss him. The question at once arises as to whether the fiery Nazi leader, who has built up a strong civil and military machine throughout Germany, would submit peacefully to being deposed, feeling, as he does, that he has been called to save the fatherland. That many of his ardent followers would urge him to rally his brown shirts and oppose such a move, there can be no question.

Hindenburg has been so chary of exercising his remnants of authority, and so considerate in his handling of the chancellor upon the two occasions on which he has intervened, that his action furnishes no guide as to what the outcome might be if they should face open disagreement upon a vital issue. While, under the constitution, the president may end the dictatorship by dismissing Hitler, executive nomination for the cabinet is not a constitutional power, but a procedure established by President Ebert. The present cabinet has made no attempt to alter this rule, but many believe it would act if necessary to prevent a Nazi overturn.

It is hard to believe that Hindenburg is in sympathy with all the Nazi innovations, but it is equally clear that at the present height of Hitler's power and popularity he is careful not to risk a break which would precipitate a real test of authority.

Simon Bolivar.

In many nations yesterday the 150th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar was observed with appropriate ceremonies. The stature of this great man grows larger as time passes, and as one nation after another in the Bolivar galaxy shines with greater lustre. In Washington the Minister of Venezuela appropriately acted as host in celebration of Bolivar day at the Pan American Union. The Ambassador of Spain voiced the sentiments of all diplomats present in rendering homage to Bolivar and to the nations that owe their independence to him.

The ordeals through which the South American liberator passed would have crushed an ordinary man. He seemed to thrive upon disappointed hopes and thwarted plans. With the vision of a seer and the hardihood of a pioneer, Bolivar planned, fought, revised his plans, and fought again. The fruit of his efforts was ripened by others, but there would have been no planting but for him. His name is indelibly associated with the liberation of many countries. His plans were never consummated in full. If they had been, South America today would be much more advanced. But Bolivars appear only rarely in world history, and it is not to be expected that one such genius should follow another, to carry civilization forward without interruption.

Nevertheless, no country which cherishes the memory of such a patriot can fail to make progress. In spite of unnecessary controversies, in spite of the interruptions of self-seeking politicians and would-be dictators, the nations in the Bolivar orbit are moving forward. The United States, happy in the heritage of Washington, rejoice in the well-being of nations that inherit their freedom from Simon Bolivar.

Citizens' Economy Councils.

Throughout the United States citizens aroused by the inefficient and wasteful methods of local governments are beginning to take a more active part in the administration of city affairs. Nearly 100 municipalities have set up citizens' councils for constructive economy since the first of the year. The main purpose of these councils is to advise the various agencies, both governmental and volunteer, which spend the public money.

This movement, fostered by the National Municipal League, is sponsored by fifty-nine cooperating organizations, whose interests cover all phases of public and philanthropical work. Heretofore city governments have not had at their council tables direct representation. By bringing into conference men and women primarily interested in getting the greatest possible benefit from every dollar expended, it has been possible to effect great savings.

Extravagant expenditures meet with prompt opposition from the citizens' councils, as do unjust taxes and lenient tax enforcement. It has been the policy, furthermore, in virtually every council to urge that administrative responsibility be placed on individuals professionally trained and appointed rather than elected. This would substitute for the spoils and patronage in municipal affairs a system based on capacity and merit. A yearly comparative budget is also a usual requirement made by the councils. By drawing up in clear and concise form the expenditures of the past year in every department, and the proposed expenditures for the coming year, the allotment of available funds and adjustment of taxation are more equitable and acceptable to the public that pays.

Japan's Railway Coup.

All danger of a serious break between Japan and Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway seem to have disappeared. As the tension lessened over Japan's demand that the road be transferred to the new state of Manchukuo, observers have been led to believe that the rumors of trouble were largely encouraged for the purpose of giving Russia a better bargain in disposing of the property. The value of the road has fallen greatly during recent months, due mainly to the construction of new lines in Manchuria both north and south of the old route.

The Soviet has little need to retain its interest in this line, since it has lost both its strategic and economic importance. The railroad lease has only twenty-five more years to run and during that period is much more likely to show a loss than a profit. Russia has much more use for the lump sum she would receive from the sale than doubtful benefits from continued operation. Under Japanese control the road can be operated far more economically than formerly. At present it employs 15,625 persons, half of whom are Chinese, who in most cases were retained because of parity requirements. Japanese ownership would permit a large reduction in personnel, elimination of the cumbersome board of directors and the expense of keeping all accounts and records in two languages.

During recent months exports from northern Manchuria have been shipped almost exclusively by the southern route, the Ussuri railway realizing no benefit whatever from the export season. Since the Siberian line formerly carried a large part of the business to Vladivostok, the Soviet views the loss of export freight with no little disappointment. A change in ownership will now be welcomed by both governments, while China is apparently reconciled to this inevitable transfer.

The Fortunate Mollisons.

To have been in an airplane accident in which their plane was virtually demolished and be able to leave the Bridgeport hospital to continue their journey next day entitles the flying Mollisons to more congratulations upon their good luck than commiserations that they did not reach New York Sunday night. To fly for 39 hours, cross the broad Atlantic and crack up for lack of fuel within less than an hour of their goal was a cruel trick of fate.

Thousands of watchers were waiting to greet the intrepid pair at the Floyd Bennett Field, as it was known that they were safely over their ocean flight. Circling planes, flood lights, photographers and broadcasters were all in readiness to welcome the fliers. It was an intensely dramatic scene when the word was received that Capt. Mollison and wife were in the hospital suffering from the effects of a half crash at Bridgeport.

It was a scene which was vividly transferred to many thousands who were listening over the radio. The wave of sympathy that surged through the crowd at the landing field was transmitted in vivid and picturesque broadcasts from the ground and directly from a circling plane. It was with a universal sigh of relief that the waiting throng and the radio audience learned that the injuries of the fliers were not serious. The Mollisons are in New York to join two other heroes of aviation, Balbo and Post, and receive their just share of acclaim. They just missed their goal, but it detracts little from their exploit, which entailed so many perilous hours in the air.

Hurricane Forecasts.

The forecast division of the United States Weather Bureau has established an elaborate network of ship-to-ship communications that will function over the Caribbean, south Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico during the hurricane season, approximately from June to November. Ships traveling regularly in southern waters will have transmit weather observations to shore stations at various points. The coordination of this information from the ships, together with the observations from the stations, will give a more complete knowledge of the weather in that region than has ever before been possible.

As in many other fields, constructive work in making weather forecasts practically available is handicapped by well-meaning but misinformed persons who spread erroneous opinions and even superstitions. The excitement prevailing when a hurricane is approaching often stimulates public credence in unofficial rumors. Under such circumstances the vitally important official advices and warnings lose much of their importance.

In an explanatory pamphlet entitled "The Hurricane Warning Service," issued by the Weather Bureau, it is made clear that much of the anxiety following the announcement of a tropical storm is unwarranted. Needless worry could be avoided if the residents of the affected regions would follow the advice and warnings issued by the bureau and if they would learn at least the elementary characteristics of tropical storms. Friends and relatives in all parts of the United States are often unnecessarily alarmed by sensational false reports of disturbances in southern areas where Americans are living or cruising. The supplementary ship service now arranged for will make possible both the more accurate timing of a storm's arrival and a more exact statement concerning its course and intensity.

Transplanted Landmarks.

From the Boston Transcript.

The boyhood home of Capt. Cook, the navigator, at Great Ayton, in Yorkshire, has been sold and is to be taken down, brick by brick, and shipped to Australia, there to be erected in a place of honor for next year's centennial celebration of the founding of the commonwealth of Victoria. When the owners disposed of the house they "expressed a wish that it remain where it had stood as a monument to the great and noble man, but subsequently agreed to a modified stipulation that it should not be moved outside of the British Empire."

It is difficult to see how any genuine sentiment of patriotism or veneration can prompt this tearing down and setting up again in new locations of these ancient landmarks of historical or heroic importance. As well might a rich foreign bibliophile purchase and remove to his own country the house at Stratford in which Shakespeare was born.

Taking away the brick and mortar sunders most of the associations with which the shrine has always been identified. The ground about it is hallowed—the familiarity of the nearer scene; the distant view. The very character of the people of the place imparts a friendly homeliness to it which is utterly lost once it is transplanted to a strange situation among a people who, having no traditions or heroes of their own, must fain buy or borrow them from the old home. Let us hope that no vicissitudes of fortune will ever bring Mount Vernon on the market to see it perhaps carried away piecemeal to the Panama Canal Zone or to the Philippines to gratify a misguided sense of self-aggrandizement on the part of colonial officialdom.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

Starting from Here.

Who cries: "We're starting over!" I remember long ago
A score of treasured friendships we hadn't come to know.
Though we were young and hopeful when our fight for fame began,
We'd less of faith and wisdom to support our little plan.

Who says we've fallen backward? Here we are and here we stay,
Proud possessors still of treasures we have gathered on the way.
It is true we've lost some money, but we will not have it told
In the years that lie behind us we've been working just for gold.

Who's the poor man of the morning? Just the starveling soul who thought
Alone of yellow money and the tawdry stuff it bought.
Chance has stripped his purse of dollars and he's sorely now bereft,
If he looks his long life over and discovers nothing left.

But we've friends to aid and counsel, and we've faith to hold us fast;
We have countless happy memories we can cherish to the last.
We are older, yes, and wiser in the lore of peace and pain,
And with all the years have taught us we can go to work again.

It Must Be a Sorry House If It Falls When the Scaffolding Breaks

By Robert Quillen

THIS is a fable concerning a rich person and a prince, and there is a moral for those who can see it.

The rich person was very proud and there was a haughty look in his eye.

If you should ask what reason he had to be proud, it would be difficult to answer.

He was no more handsome than other people in his community; he was neither better educated nor more intelligent than the others; his morals were not above the average. In fact, he was ordinary in all particulars except his arrogance.

Yet he felt superior to ordinary people not of his household, and comparison with the best never made him feel humble.

If some person got the better of him in an argument, he would feel irritated for a moment; but soon he would say to himself: "Ha! I could buy all the fellow has and not miss the change." And that made him feel good again.

That thought, in fact, was his consolation whenever he needed cheering up. When he felt inclined to envy those who were younger or healthier or smarter or more popular or handsomer, he always consoled himself by thinking: "Anyway, I've got a lot more jack than he has."

But, alas! a depression came along and stripped him of his millions and left him just enough to pay board at a second-rate hotel.

When the dust settled, he moved to a small town where nobody knew him and grew a beard to disguise himself.

"I'll never set foot in the old town again," he said. "I couldn't face people. I couldn't bear it to have them see me as I am now. The shame of it The awful shame of it!"

Then there was the prince.

He had great power and unlimited riches, and he also was proud. But he had a right to be proud, for he was a fine specimen.

He was handsome, polished, cultured, learned and wise. As an athlete he had few equals. In his veins was the blood of heroes and sages. His moral and physical courage had stood every test. He was gentle, just and generous, and his pride lifted him above all dishonor.

But he also lost. Ill fortune stripped him of his riches and his throne and left him in rags among beggars.

A stranger passing that way saw him and observed that his head was unbowed.

"Good sir," said the stranger, "it is clear that you have suffered great misfortune, and yet you have the proud look of a prince."

"And why not?" asked the prince. "I have lost nothing except my throne and my riches."

When Red Tape Is Cut.
Boston Transcript.

Agents of the Federal Department of Justice can not act under State laws when it comes to the capture of kidnapers. But these highly trained detectives may investigate every abduction to ascertain whether or not Federal law has been violated. The case is well put by Joseph B. Keenan, special attorney general in charge of the drive against racketeers and their kind. He says: "We do not know whether a kidnaping case comes under Federal jurisdiction until we have found the man. We are going after them. We will find out after we have found our men, with the aid of State authorities, whether it is a Federal of a State case." Here is a common-sense method of cutting a lot of red tape in order to get results. It is made plain that there need be no trouble over conflict of jurisdiction.

Failure Drop Off.

The 349 business failures in the United States reported for the final week of June were the fewest in any like period since 1929. And that buoyant something in the air ought to prevent any one from casually observing that there are fewer businesses left to fail.

If Mr. Roosevelt's plans for the return of prosperity go blooey, we can all start kidnaping and selling each other back again and get rich that way.

Federal Jobs for All.
Luverne (Minn.) Herald.

If unemployment is the root of the depression in this country, as many contend, the end of the depression is now in sight. By the time all the new bureaus, commissions, conservators, appraisers and supervisors, and in turn all their clerks, stenographers and field men are appointed to carry on all the Federal air projects created by Congress, there should be a Federal job for every one of the 13,000,00 unemployed persons. All that will be necessary then will be for the taxpayers to pay these additional salaries, plus the interest on the billions of dollars in bonds necessary to carry on the projects, and prosperity will be restored to high tide. The fellow who said you can't squander yourself into prosperity didn't know what he was talking about.

It is not likely that kidnapers will subside until there are a few first-class executions to sort of emphasize the public dislike for this type of crime.

Europe's Attitude.

Europe's attitude toward paying her debts is some like that of a man who, when asked to pay his doctor, said, "I can't give you any money, Doc, but I will promise to give you all my business."

Warning to the States That They Must Help to Relieve Their Own People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, has told the States that they will have a rude awakening unless they make some provision of their own to care for their destitute. The Federal Government has issued the warning that it will not continue to care for the destitute of the different States unless the States themselves make adequate provision to care for their hungry and homeless persons.

For the past five months the Federal Government has shown by action that it means business. But it must have the whole-hearted cooperation of the States. The various States must provide adequate relief for those who are in distress even if such a step requires a special session of the Legislature.

In the States that fail to take seriously the warning issued by Mr. Hopkins, there will be much unnecessary suffering this winter.

Opposes Idea That Ship Captains Should Go Down When Rescue Is at Hand.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Capt. F. L. Sears of the oil tanker Petrol chose to go down with his ship when it sank off the coast of South Carolina. It was up to the man to decide whether he would go down or be rescued. I hold that sea captains make the wrong decision when they go down with their ships, if rescue is at hand. Most of them are comparatively young men, and who knows what great benefit to mankind some of these gallant men may have been in future years had they not given up their lives? Is such an act attributed to the code of the sea; can it be called bravery, or may it not be termed suicide?

Bailiff's Shots In Court Stop Police Slayer

Killer's Break for Liberty Halted as Guard Fires Dead Man's Gun.

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—A killer broke away from his guard in the criminal courts building today, shot Policeman John Sevick dead and raced down the corridor toward freedom.

As bullets thudded against the door of the courtroom an audience and attaches ducked in panic from the line of fire, a bailiff snatched the fallen policeman's revolver and ran after the fugitive. He shot the gunman, John Scheck, twice in the back, but Scheck ran on down the courthouse stairs.

On the floor below a clerk accosted Scheck.

The gunman wheeled, leveled his pistol and pulled the trigger. It clicked harmlessly. He slumped to the floor. The bailiff's shots had taken effect. Physicians said he probably would die.

Carl Grundhoefer, codefendant with Scheck on charges of bank robbery and murder, had sprinted from the bullpen with Scheck, but was unarmed. He gave himself up, protesting his 21-year-old companion had forced him to run.

Sevick, aged 32, was fifth of the Chicago force to die on duty in the last month.

Visited by Relatives.

The weapon had been smuggled to Scheck probably a few moments before his sensational break. In violation of criminal court rules, eight persons had visited him in the bullpen just after he was arraigned and obtained continuance on charges of robbing a Niles Center bank last April of $4,800 and, without provocation, murdering the cashier.

Scheck's mother, sister, brother, sweetheart and others had chatted with him, and officials were convinced the pistol had been given to him then.

Investigation of the circumstances of the visit was begun by Warden David Moneypenny, of the county jail, and Sheriff Edward D. Meyering, and six deputies were dismissed this afternoon—one of them Bailiff Jack Kavanagh, from whom the pair had escaped while being marched from the bullpen. It was Kavanagh who rushed into the courtroom to shout a warning and then picked up Policeman Sevick's pistol and shot Scheck.

This committee is to be composed of the mayor, the official heads of the Chamber of Commerce, Clearing House Association, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, Retail merchants, Federation of Labor, Advertising Club, Federation of Women's Clubs, welfare societies, Ministerial Association, Real Estate Association and any other civic organizations representative of an important element in the economic life of the community.

Brothers Missing; Feared Drowned

Takoma Park Men May Have Died as One Went to Aid of Other.

Two Takoma Park brothers, Charles and John King, 23 and 21 years old respectively, were missing early today after one went to the rescue of the other who had fallen from a cabin cruiser in the Potomac river about 200 yards off the Bellevue magazine.

While Charles was preparing to cast the anchor overboard after the engine of the cruiser had stalled, a hand railing broke throwing him into the water. His brother leaped in after him. Other members of the party of seven tossed life preservers. The brothers were said to have been laughing and joking at their predicments as the cruiser drifted away in the flow of the tide.

The owner of the cruiser, Robert S. Tiger, 620 Fuller street northwest, expressed belief that the brothers, said to be strong swimmers, had reached the shore safely. On the craft were Rhoda Kenu, 3100 block of R street northwest; Wilma Palmer, 1710 M street northwest; Dorothy Lewis, 506 I street northwest, and S. F. McHugh, no address given.

Called to the rescue, harbor police were searching the river near the Black Buoy at the Naval Research Laboratory early today for the missing men.

The Federal Diary

By George D. Riley.

Tennis? Why Not?

I AM a constant reader of your column. I notice that you have sponsored almost every activity wherein an opportunity is given the Federal employes to get together and know each other better. Bridge tournament, jig-saw puzzle tournament, golf tournament, water rodeo and swimming are a few of the many activities that you sponsor. Why not include tennis?

You will find that there are quite a number of tennis players in the departments. I shall be glad to help you out in any capacity you will find me useful.—Bill Seidell, Public Health.

Hundred Hungry Picnickers.

Internal Revenue: Miss Effie Broadnax, Income Tax Unit, demonstrated her ability as generalissimo par excellence when, as president of the Alumni of Past Matrons and Patrons, Order of the Eastern Star, she managed a picnic supper in Rock Creek Park for upwards of 100 hungry people one evening last week.

Three guesses as to what the attraction is for Arthur P. Douglas, Public Relations Division, who spends altogether too many weekends at Colonial Beach.

These Hot Nights.

Picnics, wiener roasts, watermelon parties and boat rides are all in order these hot summer nights. Just ask Lois Kirby, Farm Credit Administration; Clara Blystone, Internal Revenue, or Rowena Shepherd (*), Veterans Administration, for particulars of the picnic sponsored by the Burrall Class, Calvary Baptist Church, held at Hains Point the other evening.

For the week ended July 22, the Civil Service Commission reports 229 appointments from reemployment registers in Washington to positions in Washington.

The 229 reemployments do not include 74 persons said to have been reinstated in the Geological Survey, pending investigation of efficiency ratings.

The 229 appointments from reemployment registers were principally in Federal agencies, whose employes are not in the classified Civil Service.

George Llewellyn, Veterans' Administration, who has gained local notoriety as an East Potomac Park day dreamer, substituted this elusive pastime last Saturday for the Federal Diary-Izaak Walton League First Annual Salt Water Rodeo at Tilghman Island. Yes, George was counted among the other 168 good fellows.

DR. H. H. CUSTIS (*), Food and Drug Administration, is one of Agriculture's outdoorsmen. His special rendezvous is Sycamore Island. Each week-end he can, with almost unfailing regularity, be registered "among those present" at this well-known playground.

The doctor has one distinct aptitude—maybe it's a hobby—he does like to read mystery stories and, judging by the wealth of material he carried under his arm last Saturday, he is "booked" for quite a period of mental sleuthing.

• • • •

Dorothy Randolph (*), Veterans' Administration, last reported in this column as attired in an Eleanore blue spring ensemble, was observed recently at a local depot in a natty costume and let us tell you she readily gains the eye as a "swell looker."

The halting gait of Miss Frances Skelly, Prohibition, we are assured, is not from old age, but comes from her arduous effort to defeat Miss Louise LaCombe, Farm Credit Administration, in their first golf game of the year, which she just did by one stroke, but even Swarmi Fedd doesn't dare print the scores.

Reorganization, August 10, is just around the cornor. . . . No wonder Jim Farley made the local postage rate 2 cents. Next P. O. report should show a handsome upturn from here out. Why not with creditors now considering Federal employes a poor risk and pushing for payment? . . . We'd often wondered why Washington is such a large market for flowers. We have a large share of florist business. After all, a few flowers can be made to work wonders sometimes for one's graphic rating scale . . . We've found a drugstore that gives 101 per cent service. Buy postage stamps there and they'll even attach them to the letters for you . . . There is a man making $840 a year, required to report at 9 a. m. and work till 11:30 p. m. Does that help toward 100 per cent efficiency? All work and no play.

Intangible, Invisible "They."

CAN it be possible that the holy of holies, the Great Sacrosant Graphic Scale, responsible for lifting Government employes to the seventh heaven of happiness or dashing them to the depths of despair, has been violated by being exposed to the gaze of the ignorant uninitiated?

As one Government clerk—or should I say as one ameba—to another, did you ever try to locate the invisible "They" who gave you the rotten efficiency mark while raising some new employe too dumb to answer the phone intelligently? "They" can not be located.

But if you will sit calmly down at your desk and compare the fraternal, or the religious, affiliations of the "highly efficient" clerk and the invisible "THEY," nine times out of ten you will find that they are the same while you are beyond the pale of a good mark—right church but the wrong pew. And then again the ankles might be a wee bit too thick!

And there you have the atrocious system followed in making the much discussed "efficiency marks," as I see it and as thousands of others see it, were their opinions only known.

The despicable abuses of this system have made it possible for one person, serving as a rating officer, to vent personal spite and do irremediable wrong to all employes whom they do not like—regardless of displayed ability, and to raise to high grades and salaries their favorites—efficient or worthless.

May you meet with unqualified success in your worthy attempt to abolish such a travesty upon justice as the present efficiency system.—JUST AN INQUIRER.

Four-Day Week at Navy Yard.

NAVY YARD goes on an eight-hour, four-day week shortly, instead of the original five-day week first planned. Mondays and Saturdays will be off.

The same money will continue to be paid, the plan being evolved because of adoption of a code for similar lines in private industry.

I am taking this means of congratulating and commending you upon the success of the Saltwater Fishing Rodeo. I talked to a number coming home and not once did I hear an uncomplimentary criticism. Every one seemed to have had a most enjoyable time despite the lack of fish.—LON A. SCHIMPF, Federal Trade Commission.

Francis D. Barstow, general chairman of the rodeo, last night issued a message of thanks to the committee and all who made the trip to Tilghman for their wonderful spirit of helpfulness.

At Commerce:

Maye Walker, formerly of Hide and Leather Division, Commerce, is now in the Economic Research Division.

Publications Section, Census, is all happy and excited this morning (Monday) having just received news that Mrs. Sylvia Longbon of that Division, was visited by Brother Stork Saturday afternoon. A girl—7 pounds, 6 ounces. Mother and daughter are doing splendidly at Columbia Hospital.

A. A. Tomelden, Patent Office, now has charge of the Washington Weight Lifting and Athletic Club, since H. H. Rothrock went into the field from Aeronautics. Drop around and see Tommy sometime.

The Civil Service Commission will remove from the reemployment register the names of those persons whose civil-service status was not acquired through competition. Approximately 125 names will be removed. The further effect will be, of course, to prevent the entry of other persons in this class on the reemployment register.

Plan to Reopen World Parley Gaining Favor

French, Greatly Concerned Over Stabilization, Fight Adjournment.

London, July 24 (AP).—Sentiment favoring reconvening of the World Economic Conference after the recess which begins next Thursday increased today as the monetary commission adopted its report for submission at the final plenary sitting.

The French delegation was reliably reported to be anxious that the parley should not adjourn indefinitely, and Georges Bonnet, French Finance Minister, is understood to have made this clear in submitting as reporter the document outlining the work of the monetary group.

At a meeting of the steering committee, which also was held today, James M. Cox, of Ohio, supported a move for formation of a permanent executive body which could reassemble the congress, but which could not disband it without first calling for a plenary session to give this authorization.

British See Severance.

The French are still greatly concerned over currency stabilization and this feeling apparently is the basis of their desire to reopen the deliberations after a long holiday.

Some members of the British and Dominions delegations are expecting to see British currency unhooked from the French franc after the recess begins and the possibility of this development is causing some concern among the Paris group.

Several important delegates from the Dominions are likely to remain a short time after the parley disbands for private conversations with members of the British government in the hope of forming a sterling bloc whose currencies would not be hitched either to gold or the dollar.

American silver experts have virtually completed a supplementary agreement among silver producing nations to allot to each its portion of the 35,000,000 ounces which silver-holding countries will be allowed to put on the market annually.

The wheat negotiators worked out a new draft for an accord which they will ask importing States to accept as their contribution to the scheme for acreage restriction.

Remains of Gen. Morton Arrive Here Tomorrow

Morton had expressed his desire for private burial in Arlington, officials of the Twenty-ninth Division Society, which he commanded during the World War, have notified the War Department they wish to participate in the funeral. A representative will come here the first of next week to make arrangements for the burial.

$80,000,000 Treasury Offer Oversubscribed

(Associated Press.)

An offer of $80,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills was oversubscribed yesterday more than three times.

Dean Acheson, acting Secretary of the Treasury, said the total amount applied for was $259,858,000, of which $80,122,000 was accepted. The average rate of those accepted was 0.37 per cent per year on a bank discount basis. The bonds mature October 25.

Governors Vote Aid to National Recovery Plans

Nation's Future Depends on Program Success, Dern Asserts

Sacramento, Calif., July 24 (AP).—State executives attending the annual conference of governors here today unanimously promised President Roosevelt "wholehearted and active support" of the national recovery program.

On motion of Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana the conference voted that a telegram be dispatched to the Chief Executive conveying "greetings and a pledge of the several States represented by this conference to the wholehearted and active support of the recovery program which you have undertaken."

Frank Watson, introduced by Gov. John G. Pollard of Virginia, chairman, as a representative of the National Recovery Administration, said prices and business activity were showing increases which were not commensurate with the rise in pay rolls.

Earlier the governors had heard Secretary of War George H. Dern plead for State cooperation in the recovery program. He warned that if the national industrial recovery act fails "our national existence will be at stake."

A Question of Entries.

THE question of entries is always very important in the play of the Declarer, particularly when the hand belongs to the type which can easily be blocked. When the opponents realize this it is frequently possible for them to block the Declarer either in his own hand or in the Dummy and prevent him from making the sure tricks which he holds in the other hand.

A hand of this type came up recently in a rubber game at Crockford's Club in New York. Mr. Samuel Fry, jr., sat South and proved himself fully capable of appreciating the niceties of defense.

The bidding was quite logical, and although it is true that a better contract for East and West would have been four hearts, certainly three notrump seemed quite safe.

Mr. Fry, confronted with the necessity of leading one of his opponents' suits, finally decided in favor of the Queen-of-clubs lead. On this card Declarer played low and North played the 5-spot. This was poor play on Declarer's part as he should have realized the risk he was running. He gave Mr. Fry an opportunity to make a brilliant play.

On the bidding Mr. Fry reasoned that East must hold the Ace of spades and a five-card heart suit to the Queen—the latter probably accompanied by the Ten. If this were the case there was no chance of defeating the contract by normal means. The only chance lay in preventing Declarer from ever entering his own hand. At trick 2, therefore, he laid down the King of spades, fully conscious of the fact that if East also held the Queen of diamonds this play would probably cost two or three tricks, but reasoning that it was the only chance.

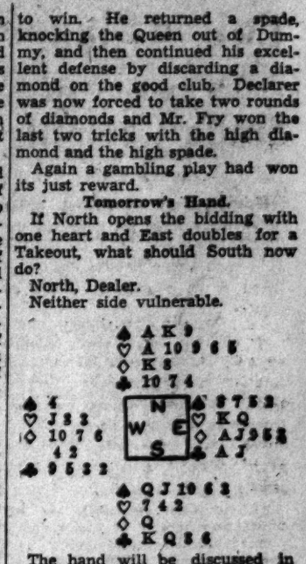
East won the King with the Ace, and now found himself completely blocked throughout the remainder of the hand. He took the Ace-King of hearts out of Dummy and then followed with a low club; North went up with the King and returned the suit. The Dummy won this trick with the Ace and another club was led which Mr. Fry was forced to win. He returned a spade, knocking the Queen out of Dummy, and then continued his excellent defense by discarding a diamond on the good club. Declarer was now forced to take two rounds of diamonds and Mr. Fry won the last two tricks with the high diamond and the high spade.

Again a gambling play had won its just reward.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If North opens the bidding with one heart and East doubles for a Takeout, what should South now do?

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Fall Buying

By Mary Brook Lucas

Of coure it's hard to think of winter clothes during our hottest months, but it happens to be Judy's job to help select fashions for Dad's store. Notice the sleeves of Judy's white organdy coat? They are of wide reversed tucks. The dress and hat are of black satin—an ever-popular material.

Think what these mannequins must suffer when the thermometer shoots up in the 80's! It's all in a day's work—so that coat departments will be all ready for us when the first chilly days arrive. And notice how the wide shoulder line has been carried over into these caracul and broadtail coats.

Quilting is winning favor with many buyers. It appears in smart little satin or sheer woolen frocks, and some of the quilted designs are quite intricate. Curly furs and nubby or velvety woolens with modified shoulder lines are considered chic. Also these "hairy" little hats of brushed felt and unshaved velvets.

Mother's individual summer suit consists of a chalky white crepe dress, cut on "slimmish" lines and worn under a three-quarter-length coat of heavy linen lace in a soft shade of pink. Two starched chiffon flowers are the only trimmings used. The V neckline and jabot collar are flattering to the matronly figure.

Tomorrow—Summer Night.

From Puppies to Pianos, Washington's Shops Are Alive With Opportunity

Two Monkeys, Now on Sale, Smile Greeting

Offerings at Auction Will Include Tufted Back Love Seat.

By The Meanderer.

A little, black-faced puppy wagged his tail and barked. A ring-tail monkey turned a tumblesault. A Polish crested bantam rooster strutted up and down. Two doves cooed contentedly. An alligator blinked and snapped his jaws. A pet shop.

A little tiger cat paced up and down his cage. Two maltese kittens watched him through half-closed eyes. Back and forth he walked. Back and forth. He stood on his hind legs and braced himself against the bars of his cage as he peered at the guinea pigs across the aisle. They scrambled round in happy confusion. Gay and giddy creatures! Not so the tiger cat. He edged close to a maltese kitten. The kitten opened his mouth and yawned. Tame creature! The tiger cat continued to pace his cage.

Two little wizzened faces peered at the Meanderer from behind the bars. Two little mouths broke into a smile. These were the marmoset monkeys from the South American jungles. They scurried about their cage in brisk fashion, chirping gayly to each other, gesticulating like Shylocks. The pair, $25.

Pleasing Table Sets.

All the exotic splendor of the Orient lies in milady's dressing table set. Her hand mirror glistens in a cloisonnee frame ornamented with miniatures in ivory. Bold, silver and precious stones, amethysts, carnelian, jade and quartz combine to glorify her brush and comb. All this magnificence is hers. It may be yours! These rich and gorgeous sets are priced to meet any purse.

Baby grand pianos are a conservative stock. They maintain the same design and the same price year in and year out. But who knows what will happen now? A new baby grand which sells for much less and boasts the same quality has joined their ranks. A music store proprietor told the Meanderer many of his customers wanted new pianos but felt that their price was prohibitive. He conceived the idea of ordering a special model, which he could release under the standard price. This baby grand, in either walnut or mahogany, is a splendid buy for $245.

Antiques on Auction.

It was heaven, there was no mistaking that. But it was dusty and dim, and there were no angels. Odd pieces of furniture lined the walls in conspicuous disarray. Beds, tables, desks, cabinets, and bookcases stood side by side, irrespective of age or value. This was the antique hunters' heaven. In this varied assortment it was possible to find genuine period pieces if one knew how to hunt. On Wednesdays and Saturdays the auctioneer mounts his stand. His eloquence is for high and low alike—colonial cane bottom chair and kitchen stoves. The selection and the price rests on the buyer's sagacity. Here is excitement! The Meanderer made mental note of a colonial chest of drawers, a tilt-top Sheriden table, and a tufted-back love seat with rounded arms which will be offered tomorrow.

The pleasure of taking pictures has been enhanced a hundredfold by the new simplified pocket kodak. The intricacies of adjustment which baffle the amateur have been eliminated. He may brave the lights and shadows with his trusty little camera, and fear neither bright days nor dark. A Thirteenth street store offers these kodaks at tempting prices.

Combination Slippers.

If a man's pipe is first in his affections, you may be sure that his household slippers are second. The Meanderer saw a pair designed to captivate the wearer as well as the onlooker. The analine dyed leather and staple leather soles make them serviceable for outdoor slippers as well as indoor. They combine quality with comfort and are priced as low as $2.50.

Cobnail glass of the Georgian period is highly prized and highly priced. Its popular pattern often is reproduced in bowls, vases, pitchers and other pieces. The shopper who is interested in these should choose carefully with an eye to the shape of the article. If it does not follow the colonial idea, she should note the incongruity and seek further. An F street shop displays a dome lamp of very old design, executed in crystal and frosted cobnail. This, with two candlesticks of the same pattern would be in excellent taste on your drop-leaf table. Lamp, $1.50; candlesticks, 75 cents.

Sour Milk and Cream Work Wonders For Waffles, Meats and Other Dishes

By Ann Barrett.

The milk and cream have turned! If this sour situation doesn't fill you with sweet rejoicings of good eating ahead, you've missed some of the world's best bets in food. To prove this, you may or may not want to eat a big dish of pot cheese with sour cream and fresh vegetables every day of your life, as Eddie Cantor does. (It's good!)

But you'll certainly want to learn what sour milk and cream can do for waffles, pancakes, biscuits, muffins, cakes, icing, cookies, pies, salad dressings, meats. And even a certain pie crust that's pastmaster, when filled and bakes with berries.

Then I shouldn't wonder if you'd start souring some of your milk or cream on purpose. Say by pouring it into a shallow dish, covering it, and setting it in the sun. It has the best flavor when it is soured rather quickly, and used soon after it has reached the "clabbered" stage. In this stage it is not spoiled milk or cream. But if you let it stand around too long it really will spoil and have a bitter, unpleasant taste.

Cooking Guides.

The delicious dishes you can make with sour milk and cream I roughly divide into two classes. First, biscuits, cakes and pastries. In making these, the important point to remember is that they require soda. And this soda does its best work (making things rise) when it's not added to the liquid, but treated as a dry ingredient and sifted thoroughly with the flour.

This first class of sour milk and cream dishes is the most familiar. But the second class of dishes (meats, fish, vegetables, salad dressings) is equally good. You get the key to this class of cookery when you just ask yourself simply what foods need a bit of sour flavor. Cucumbers? Yes—give 'em a quick sour-cream dressing with plenty of freshly-ground pepper. Mushrooms? Sure—cook 'em with sour cream and you've got a combination that would have made the Russians famous without anything else. Chicken? Right again. With paprika, onions and sour cream it gets to be the famous Hungarian dish—chicken paprika.

Sour-Cream Salad Dressing.

Now for actual recipes. I'll start off with sour-cream dressing for cucumbers. First turn a cup of heavy sour cream (have it cold) into a bowl. Using a silver fork, gradually beat in 4 tablespoons of lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon freshly-ground pepper. (Never beat sour cream too much or it may turn into butter.) Sweeten this a bit if you like. If you have no little hand-mill for grinding your whole black peppers, crack and roll them fine with a rolling pin or wooden potato masher. If you want to give this a bit of Hungarian flavor (Hungarians are very knowing with sour cream) season it to suit your taste with paprika and caraway seed (the latter first dried in the oven and pounded to a powder).

Best Whole Wheat Waffles.

For another summer dish (this time with sour milk) here is one of the best waffle recipes I've ever used. Mix and sift together thoroughly 2 cups sifted whole wheat flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon soda. In another bowl beat up 2 egg yolks, add ¼ cup salad oil or melted shortening and 1¾ cups of thick, sour milk. Stir liquid ingredients into dry ingredients. Then fold in 2 stiffly-beaten egg whites. Make 6 four-section waffles.

Summer Quick-Cake.

As for the day when you find yourself blessed with both sour milk and cream, summer quick-cake is an elegant answer to that.

Measure 2 cups sifted pastry flour, add ½ scant teaspoon soda and sift twice. Then add ½ teaspoon salt and 1 cup sugar and sift again. Next, break 2 eggs into a half-pint measuring cup. Then pour into this same cup enough thick, sour cream to come up to the ¾ mark. Next, mix this with ½ cup sour milk, ½ teaspoon lemon extract and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Combine all the wet and dry ingredients at once and beat well for 2 minutes. Bake in 2 nine-inch greased layer pans in a moderate oven (350 F).

Send for More Recipes.

If there's one thing more than another that would make this cake better eating, it's a certain sour cream fudge icing that would stay soft almost indefinitely—only it's eaten up too fast! But this, with many more favorite recipes that call for sour milk and cream, I'll have to continue in my new recipe bulletin, "25 Delicious Dishes from Sour Milk and Cream." There really are 25 of them—I just counted again to make sure. And I'll see that you get the whole 25 promptly, if you make sure to include 6 cents in loose stamps and a self-addressed envelope when you send me the coupon below.

If July 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:20 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 11:50 p. m. to 12:45 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:50 a. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

It is more than likely that you will not look forward with anticipation to this day at the office. However, the close of day will probably show results and advances beyond your expectations. If you do not let personalities interfere too much in coming to decisions on this day, you will considerably improve yourself financially.

The child born on this July 25 will quite possibly have a destructive nature that will manifest itself principally when playing with his toys. He must be taught to value and appreciate the things that are given to him. You will find him unwilling to share his playthings with others. A very active little one.

If July 25 is the date of your birth, you are undoubtedly a fearless person. You are one who comes to decisions only after lengthy deliberation and then you strike out boldly and stand stanchly by your guns. Once you have taken a position or stand on any matter, you will not turn back. Stubbornness may delay or even prevent your ultimate success unless you temper it somewhat. You seldom get down in the "dump" for yours is a gay nature. You tackle life and its problems with joy and you never doubt your ability to succeed. Your strength is of great magnitude and many is the person that you drag up the ladder of success with you.

Born on July 25, you must guard against a fiery temper that usually flares up over the most insignificant of things. You are a loyal and strong friend as long as the recipients of your friendship live up to your own ideas on life. Let one of your friends fall below your standards, even but once, and you quickly turn from them. You like people fiercely, but you are quick to forget them; you do not allow them to "eat" too far into your affections. You are quite a conversationalist and public talker. You are persuasive, politic and sincere in your speech. You might make of yourself a politician or statesman if you felt the urge. You no doubt are passionately fond of your mate and you do not hesitate to display your affection in public. You control a strong feeling of jealousy.

Successful people born on July 25:
Arthur James Balfour, statesman.
David Belasco, dramatic producer.
Amadeo Bassi, operatic tenor.
Maxfield Parish, artist.
Frank J. Sprague, electrician and inventor.
Thomas Eakins, artist.

Centenarian Urges More Verse Study

Miss Bromley Believes Children Should Be Led Into It.

Philadelphia (U.P.). — Children should study and memorize beautiful poems, in the opinion of Miss Ellen Bromley, who recently celebrated her one-hundredth birthday anniversary.

"Poems and stories and other beautiful things make life more worth while," she said.

She came to America in 1840 on a sailing vessel.

Pretense.

Tomorrow when I go to shop,
I'll buy a painted mask,
The brightest one on any shelf;
And then when people ask

Where you have gone, I'll be so gay
No one will ever guess
That now and then I catch my breath
In sudden loneliness.

And heads will nod, and lips will say,
Once you were out of sight,
Forgetting was an easy thing . . .
And I'll pretend they're right.

Women Open World Council At Chautauqua

Delegates of 14 Nations to Discuss Night Work and Disarmament.

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 24.—Business and professional women from many countries today opened the council meeting of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, which will continue through July 28.

Canada, United States, Austria, Germany, Italy, France, Finland, Spain, Roumania, Brazil, Panama, Turkey, Japan and Latvia are among the nations represented. Notables in attendance include Dame Rachel Crowdy, former chief of the Social Questions and Opium Traffic Section of the League of Nations; Dr. Marie Munk, of Germany, who was Berlin's first woman lawyer and first woman to become a civil judge in Prussia; Mme. Marcelle Kraemer-Bach, French lawyer and feminist; Dr. Marianne Beth, Austria's first woman lawyer, and Selma Ekrem, young Turkish author.

Topics of discussion for the group will include such international questions of general interest as the Hague Convention preventing night work for women; the draft convention of the International Labor Conference, which advocates the abolition of fee-charging employment agencies, and the work of the disarmament committee of Women's International Organizations.

To Stimulate Goodwill.

Many matters of intraorganization policy will also be discussed. Week-end goodwill tours between various countries of Europe to stimulate friendly relationship will be advocated by Mme. Andre Dubosco, of Paris, chairman of the international committee on hospitality and courtesies. The music and fine arts committee, of which Signora Antoinetta Paoli Pogliani, of Rome, is chairman, will ask for the creation of further scholarships to enable artists to receive training in countries other than their own. One such scholarship now exists in the Princess Mafalda School of the Harp in Rome. It is held by a young Hungarian girl, Luisa Bella.

The possible organization of national and international exhibitions of the work of women during the year 1933-1934 will be proposed by Miss Clara Meijers, of Amsterdam, chairman of the committee of commercial exchange. The advisability of establishing an international book exchange to give circulation to the books of author-members will also be discussed.

Miss Phillips to Preside.

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, of New York City, president of the International Federation, will preside, and Miss Dorothy A. Heneker, of Geneva, executive director, will attend. Mrs. Gelino MacDonald Bowman, of Richmond, Va., president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs of the United States, and Miss A. Josephine Dauphinee, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women, will represent their federations.

A program will be given by the Chautauqua Woman's Club in connection with the meeting of the board. Speakers will include Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, on "Which Way Organized Womanhood?" Dame Rachel Crowdy and Miss Heneker.

Last night at the Chautauqua Assembly there was a discussion on "What Holds Back Disarmament?" with Dame Rachel Crowdy, Dr. Munk, Mme. Kreamer Bach, Miss Ekram, Miss Lilly Kelly, of the Argentines; Mrs. Cecilia Kasselstrom, of Finland, and Miss Heneker as speakers. Other speakers at the meetings of the assembly will be Dr. Christine Galitzi, of Roumania; Dame Rachel Crowdy, Dr. Marie Munk and Mrs. Gelino MacDonald Bowman; the latter speaking on "The Twentieth Century Woman and Her Responsibilities."

Teach Children Table Manners; Have Purpose

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

One of the bugbears of a growing family is the question of table manners, and oddly enough it becomes a source of friction not only between parents and children, but also between the parents themselves.

It has always seemed to me that for some obscure reason only mothers teach table manners. Furthermore, there seems no way of teaching them without being accused of nagging. So the mother is caught in a cleft stick.

Either the father, tired of being interrupted in his conversation by irrelevant corrections to the children complains that such training does no good since the children pay no attention to it, or else he one day exclaims, "Can't some one teach these children manners?"

Of course it would be delightful if our children could have nursery meals presided over by a well-trained governess who would relieve us of the burden, but for most of the world this is an idle dream, and we must get along as best we can.

The only means that works as far as I have found is to sift out the reason for our various eating customs and explain to the child, as soon as he can understand, why they are used. In the process of sifting it will be found that many small conventions we were taught have no longer any reason for existing and may well be discarded.

The normal child is interested in his food first of all, and how he gets it is a matter of supreme indifference. To him manners are merely hindrances to a complete satisfaction of his appetite.

He must be taught from the beginning that table manners help him to satisfy his hunger most efficiently—that is, with the greatest comfort and least trouble to everyone. When he sees some reasonable basis for their use, he will begin himself to take an interest in them.

Raspberry and Currant Jam.

For another old-time favorite, raspberry and currant jam, you'll want to plan on one pound of sugar and one-half cup of currant juice to each pound of red raspberries (sorted and ready for cooking). Put a layer of red raspberries into preserving kettle, sprinkle with sugar and crush with potato masher. Repeat once. Then put in layers of fruit and sugar without crushing till all are used. (Crushing first layers starts juice running so jam won't burn.) Then put in currant juice (made by cooking currants soft and straining). Then cook slowly and stir often to prevent burning. To test to see if jam is done, cool a little of it quickly on a saucer in the refrigerator. If thick enough, take off fire and seal in hot, sterilized glasses. One pound of fruit and one pound of sugar makes about one pint of jam.

Famous Pepperell Mansion Restored

Portsmouth, N. H. (U.P.).—Restored to its original grandeur, the Lady Pepperell Mansion, built in 1760 for the widow of the only American baronet, Sir William Pepperell, who commanded the Louisburg expedition, has been opened to the public at Kittery Point.

The restoration was effected at the direction of Mrs. Lovell Hodge, of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Miss Catherine Parry, of Boston, who recently acquired the landmark.

Dean's Memory of Pranks in White House Eases Discipline

Mrs. Frederick Manning, formerly Helen Taft, White House debutante, now acting dean of Bryn Mawr, has distinguished herself in the educational world, yet is as genial minded as was her father, the late Chief Justice of the United States and before that its Chief Executive.

There are people in Washington who remember that it was this tall, fine, serious faced educator who turned back the White House clocks in order to escape the 12 o'clock in bed rule so that the young people, of whom she was a leader, might continue their dancing.

When she escaped from her White House debutante duties long enough to go on a trek through the Yellowstone National Park one summer with Dr. and Mrs. George Vincent, she staged a real Indian raid on the camp one night with some of the other members of the party, surprising Dr. and Mrs. Vincent. All was silence. Every one in camp was sleeping soundly when suddenly Indians in full war paint sprang into the camp. They danced a war dance and they flourished bows and arrows—rented from a park official for the occasion.

When sky larking Bryn Mawr freshmen are sent up to "the acting dean" they need not tremble quite so much about their pranks if they search for the hidden merry twinkle in Mrs. Manning's bright blue eyes.

Better Apples Expected From Thinned Orchards

Wenatchee, Wash (U.P.).—Wenatchee apples, known the world over for their delicious and juicy flavor, were expected to reach even more satisfying taste this year.

Orchards will be thinned out to give the large, healthy trees more room to "stretch." Many odd varieties have also been eliminated.

What's in Fashions?

Wool Swagger Suits Give Madame Air of Paris

By Amos Parrish.

New York, July 24.—Even though your pet petunias and merry marigolds show no sign of it, autumn is on the way. Fashion's autumn, anyway. And its harbinger is the swagger suit—cut on boxy lines and with less swagger than this summer.

College-bound girls are already making their choice between the fashionable browns, grays, bronzy greens and blue mixtures.

Practical Uses.

But one and all agree that in either two or three-piece style this boxy swagger is a fine fashion to buy early since it has so many practical uses.

A 3-piece suit—boxy coat, skirt and short suit jacket—really resolves into two suits, an extra jacket, an extra topcoat and an extra skirt.

A 2-piece suit—coat and skirt—makes a suit, extra topcoat and extra skirt.

Classic Raglans.

The classic raglan cut which was so popular in the spring is still an important fashion. Newer is the coat with yoke top, the sleeves often pleated into the yoke. Then there's the one with scarf collar, one type of which is sketched.

Some have a real fall look with shawl or scarf collars of cozy, sturdy furs. And some depart from the plain swagger, boxy line and put on those new heightening shoulder details you find in coats. (We've put one of these onto the coat pictured . . . upstanding, wing-like bretelles.)

Knit a Cardigan.

With a suit of this type you'll want plenty of sweaters, of course, and we have directions for knitting a smart cardigan of the fashionable cotton string. The stitch is simple—knit a row, purl a row—and goes quickly.

If you'd like them, send the filled-in coupon, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a 3c, loose stamp.

Adults' Education Gains in Missouri

Kansas City, Mo. (U.P.).—Adult education is due to boom in Kansas City this winter.

A study group that for three years pioneered the way has been recognized by the American Association for Adult Education, the parent group at New York.

A committee from the Kansas City organization visited Des Moines, Iowa, heralded by educators as one of the outstanding cities in the nation where the experiment in adult education has been attempted.

Funds will be provided for comprehensive courses this winter under direction of Missouri and Kansas University professors.

Use Sandwich Paste for Your Cocktail Hour

Blend With Mayonnaise and Then Spread on Canape Biscuit.

You probably have used some of the piquant sandwich pastes on the market by just blending them with a little mayonnaise. They are especially convenient if the sandwiches are to be made up at a moment's notice or spread out-of-doors at a picnic.

But have you ever used them for canape spreads at the cocktail hour? There are many different kinds of pastes on the market—deviled ham, bloater, sardine, anchovy, lobster, crab, roquefort, duck, tongue, chicken, chicken liver, and turkey. They come ready to moisten with a bit of mayonnaise and spread. And they are just the thing to serve with cocktails.

Perhaps the most appetizing of these is the deviled ham paste. Try blending it with mayonnaise, spreading it on canape biscuits, and adding a bit of minced onion and a layer of chicken liver paste on top. Or try it with just a dash of prepared horse-radish and a bit of mayonnaise, on toast rounds.

Also try filling little crackly biscuits with sardine paste, seasoned with lemon juice and mayonnaise, and topped with a bit of shrimp (lightly coated with mayonnaise). Or just try sardine paste with lemon juice, a bit of horse-radish, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce, and a little mayonnaise.

Still another attractive canape spread is roquefort paste moistened with mayonnaise and Worcestershire sauce.

After the cocktails, for a canape to serve at the table as the first course, here is one which is most colorful and especially appetizing: cut four hard-cooked eggs in half, lengthwise, and remove the yolks. Blend the yolks with anchovy paste, and Worcestershire sauce until they are smooth. Then refill the whites and chill them thoroughly. Serve them on toast rounds, the centers of which have been cut out with a smaller cutter. Then cover the whole thing with a spoonful of mayonnaise to which small pieces of fresh, skinned tomatoes have been added.

Rosary Brought Back By Bolt of Lightning

Worcester, Mass. (U.P.).—A bolt of lightning resulted indirectly in the restoration to Miss Madolyn M. Larkin of a string of rosary beads she lost two years ago. When lightning struck the Larkin home, the young woman's name appeared in a local newspaper. The cashier of a theater in which the beads had been found connected the name engraved on the beads with the name in the paper, and restored the beads to their owner.

FOLLOWING President Roosevelt's address to the meeting of State chief executives at San Francisco over WRC and WJSV tonight, representatives of the governors' conference will reply.

Mr. Roosevelt will be heard from 11 to 11:15 p. m. from the White House. At the conclusion of his remarks there will be a switchover to San Francisco, and A. J. Cleary, the city's chief administrator, will introduce Mayor Rossi, who will deliver a brief greeting. The main addresses will be made by Gov. James Rolph of California and Gov. John Pollard of Virginia.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's address, "The New Responsibily of Women," will be heard from Chautauqua, N. Y., over WMAL at 8 o'clock tonight.

Rear Adml. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., retired, representing President Roosevelt, will be the speaker this morning at the Fortieth Anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Gailor of Tennessee. (WMAL—11:30 o'clock.)

THERE should be plenty of fun this afternoon when British performers broadcasting from London imitate American radio celebrities, such as Bing Crosby, Amos n'Andy, Guy Lombardo and the Royal Canadians. (WJSV—2 p. m.)

The newest epic of heroism, the spectacular flight of Italian Air Minister Italo Balbo and his air armada, will be dramatized on the Lives at Stake program over WRC at 9 p. m.

Gen. Balbo was asked in New York to clear up the question as to whether he was able to communicate direct by radio from his planes to Mussolini in Rome. At first he did not want to answer this question, but finally said:

"We have in our planes the most modern, the most powerful and, by the same token, the most mysterious sending and receiving sets in use. Their details are secret, but they have a range of 6,000 miles and weigh only 40 kilos (about 92 pounds). We communicate directly with the powerful station at Monticallo or Ostia."

Gen. Balbo was presented by New York Italians with 48 little long and short wave receiving sets, weighing only 6 pounds apiece, for himself and each of his officers.

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON will report latest developments in the Federal Industrial Control center over WRC at 9:30 p. m., when he speaks on the National Radio Forum.

The general now has before him a blanket code setting minimum wages and maximum work hours for both labor and the "white collar class," and this will be among the subjects which he will discuss. Others will include the trade agreement recently filed by the ranking industry, steel.

Gen. Johnson also will explain how the section of the national recovery act of which he is administrator functions, and the progress being made toward getting his vast administrative machinery into order.

Donald A. Richberg, general counsel to the National Recovery Administration, will speak on "Progress of the National Recovery Act" over WJSV at 7:15 p. m.

Nino Martini, brilliant young tenor, will go on a once-a-week schedule of WJSV beginning at 8:30 p. m.

Bing Crosby, now picture-making in Hollywood, will go from the movie studios to the radio studios for an appearance with "California Melodies" over WJSV at 9 p. m.

"MAY I call to your attention the Washington Juvenile Artist Club, composed of the most talented children of Washington, heard on Station WJSV every Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. These kiddies certainly do deserve a break. They have been on for several months," writes Mrs. Rosa Jones, of 2043 Bennett street southeast.

"This is not a commercial club, but it is for developing and finding talent that can be promoted among children. They give benefit performances all during the year. The sponsors are Dorothy Davenport, well known in local music and dramatic circles, a very able directress, and her assistant, Freda Simon. Their accompanist is Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, concert pianist. We would appreciate any attention you gave this club."

A new English number featuring Col. Manny Prager, of "King's 'Osses" fame, known as "My Word," will be introduced by Ben Bernie tonight, along with "Oh, for the Life of a Lifeguard." (WRC, 8 p. m.)

"Reducing the School Budget" will be discussed by Prof. John K. Norton, chairman of the Joint Commission on Emergency in Education; Robert E. Simon, educational chairman, United Parents Association, and Prof. George S. Counts, of Columbia University. (WMAL, 6:15 p. m.)

AMERICA'S first jinriksha race will be broadcast over WJSV at 3:30 p. m. A few variations from the original form of 'riksha racing will be observed in the initial American running. Athletes from 10 colleges will replace the stalwart coolies who usually pull the vehicles, and society girls will be the passengers.

The setting of the race will be the grounds of a Century of Progress in Chicago. The contest will be at a distance of 1 mile, starting at the Hall of Science.

The Ice House Quartet, of Toledo, Ohio, an internationally known chorus of 40 voices, will be heard in a concert over WMAL at 2:30 p. m. The chorus originally was a quartet and has retained the name despite the added voices. The chorus will present: "The Ice Man," by Gabriel; "the Bells of St. Mary's," by Adams; Verdi's "Leonora" and "Auf Wiedersehn," by Romberg.

The second act of "The Mikado" will be heard over WJSV at 9:45 p. m.

With returning prosperity, Bert Lahr, comedian, points out it won't be long now before the phrase "as extinct as the dough dough" will itself become extinct.

TOM HOWARD, boob clerk of the Musical Grocery Store, is not as simple as he sounds. He never gets arrested for speeding, because of his police dog. But it's not an ordinary police dog. It's a motorcycle police dog. He's trained the pup to sit in the back seat and keep a weather eye out for cops, when he hears a motorcycle sneaking up in back of Tom's car, he begins to bray like one of the bloodhounds in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Frank Crumit has found an old "Night and Day," not the one which recently was a hit number, but a tune published in 1907, and he will feature it when he sings with Julia Sanderson on the Plantation over WRC at 7 p. m. On the same program Crumit will sing Brandford Browne's new tune "Maurice and Gendarme," which he introduced recently. Angelita Loyo's solos include "Chiquita," by Lacalle, and "Tequiro," by Lara.

Leonardtown, Md., July 24.—J. E. Jenkins, of the extension service at College Park, Md., on Thursday will address patrons and members of the Margaret Brent High School Association at their first annual picnic at Sandgates on the Patuxent River.

Members of the preparation committee are Mrs. Ernest D. Burch, of Milestown, Md.; Magistrate Robert D. Burroughs, James C. Greenwell and Sol Russell, of Mechanicsville, Md.; Mrs. Clarence Guy, of Clements, Md., and Harry M. Jones and Stephen M. Jones, of Leonardtown.

Walt Mason, Himself

Hatred.

ALONG my shelves of books I drift, and find a volume by Dean Swift, and think a while of that great scout, who thought the world was inside out, and upside down and wrong end first, of all the planets last and worst. A genius of the greatest kind, but hatred festered in his mind; he looked upon the human race as something venomous and base, the men were freaks, the women hags, inferior to neighing nags. Whenever he took up his pen, it was to flay the tribes of men, to hold humanity to scorn as something better left unborn. Yet all his satires, savage, dire, stirred up much mirth and little ire; men laughed at things the bitter Dean supposed would make their blood turn green. His tales of Gulliver he wrote to grasp all mankind by the throat and show what cheap and paltry things were statesmen, diplomats and kings. And they became the favored toys, the fairy tales of girls and boys, the bedtime stories of his age, and no one sensed their futile rage. Frustrated always he became an expert in the hatred game. And, hating every one in sight, his brain gigantic knew a blight, and like an idiot he spent his final years, until he went. I wonder if his hatred led to cataclysm in his head. Had love inspired him more than hate, he would have been entirely great.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—As Lieut Edward J. Chapman was strolling through the Forties the other night, he bumped into Joe Cook and Dave Chasen just coming from a rehearsal of their new show, "Hunky Dory."

"That's a great title," enthused Chapman. "Do you know where it originated?" Cook and Chasen didn't.

"It comes from Shanghai," explained this officer of the U. S. Marines. "American sailors on shore leave there always found it extremely difficult to find their way through those corkscrew Chinese streets back to where their ships were anchored, and especially if it was at night and they became overly gay from too many bowls of bird's nest soup.

"Their route back to the waterfront led down a street called Hunky, and then they turned the corner at a street called Dory. When they reached this corner, they always shouted: 'It's Hunky Dory. Everything's okay now.'"

Dog Days.

Driven from booking office to booking office in his hopeful quest for a few jobs for his act, a fellow with a pack of trained dogs was beginning to grow a trifle panicky. Not only was he striving to feed himself on nothing net, but there were large orders of meat to buy for the dogs.

However, he plans, when he reaches the bottom of his grouch bag, to spend the last few quarters on himself and set his hungry dogs on the thick-skinned booking agents.

On Tenth avenue there is a boarding house for animal acts. Trained dogs, horses, elephants, lions, pigeons and such things can be boarded here for much less than their owners can feed them, because the fellow who runs the place buys food in wholesale lots.

There is one troupe of trained lions over there now. Their owner is a woman who spends her morning hours interviewing booking agents, and in the afternoon she comes over and puts the cats through their paces. They have to be put through their act every day as lions have poor memories.

Water Babies.

Every midafternoon a white uniformed man driving a Department of Street Cleaning truck stops at a busy Times square corner. Gathered around a fireplug are a score or so shoeshine boys who ply their trade in the neighborhood.

The D. S. C. man turns on the fire plug, leaving it running until each shine boy has had a cooling drink and washed his face and hands.

A policeman in Harlem arrested a young fellow up there the other day for turning on a fire plug. The youngster explained that his dog needed a bath "something terrible" and he had no bathtub at home in which to wash his pet.

Trade Activity Keeps Up Pace, Survey Shows

Signs of Lull in Summer Still Absent as Codes Add Strength.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 24.—Another flood of reports, testifying to the continued betterment in general business and the extension of productive operations into the usual holiday season, appeared this week.

Substantial additions still are being made to employment and pay rolls, and thus far nothing has developed to bolster the view of a lull in activity during the balance of the summer, as the flow of orders and inquiries is quickening rather than diminishing, buyers being pressed to action by the broadening sweep of rising markets.

Many of the latter have been provided an additional element of strength by the adoption of the industrial code, the approval of which will establish minimum wages and minimum working hours, thus excluding the possibility of any weakening of the firm position held. The technical reaction in commodity and security markets is viewed as a temporary relaxation of speculative enthusiasm.

Irregularity in Buying.

While reports from all sections of the country revealed an extension of manufacturing activity, there was less uniformity as to the increase in wholesale bnying. Retail sales, on the other hand, have continued steadily upward, with new records for the current season being made in agricultural districts, where early crops have been marketed.

In fact, buying appears to be increasing more rapidly than it decreased during some stages of the period of economic readjustment, with the peak of the movement becoming removed farther each week. In some districts, retail sales are making the best comparative showing in three years.

Unsold merchandise held by manufacturers and distributors has thus far not become of burdensome proportions, and its early depletion is the aim of the administration in hastening the application of codes and expending purchasing power. As a short cut to this objective, a voluntary blanket code to establish a minimum wage for the entire country is under consideration.

Inventories and Needs.

It now appears that the anticipatory accumulations of inventories in some-distributive channels even may prove inadequate, as soon as the full force of the increased agricultural spending will have been felt, accompanied by the higher wages and rapid widening of employment, which will be necessary for the application of the various codes sponsored by the Government. Besides, the renewal of dividend payments on corporate stocks will contribute no insignificant sum-total to available purchasing power within the next few months.

The indices of those industries whose latest report included the week in which Independence Day was observed showed a slight recession, but the lines on the graphs which mark the course of the others have continued upward. Electric power output has risen 16.4 per cent above the corresponding total of last year, which is the largest percentage gain recorded in the 11 weeks of successive increases, the current figure being only 4.5 per cent below that for the comparative week of 1929.

Steel operations have reached the 1930 level, while orders and shipments of lumber continue in excess of production, and carloadings are nearly 30 per cent over the 1932 total. The first recession in 17 weeks has appeared in the Business Activity Barometer, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., due to a minor lessening in steel mill activity and a slight drop in carloadings. On July 19, the Barometer stood at 69.5 per cent of the 1928-30 average, as compared with 72.2 for the week preceding, but still is 37.2 per cent above the all-time low of last March, and 40.4 per cent over the figure for the corresponding week in 1932.

Further Distributive Gains.

Whatever doubts may be held regarding the ability of consumers to absorb the constantly advancing prices of merchandise, buying at retail is expanding steadily, with the possibility of a summer letdown yet to be discerned. Not only are the sale totals of such essentials as clothing, dry goods, shoes, dress accessories, furniture, rugs and hardware running ahead of the comparative records of 1932, but automobile sales, both passenger and commercial, have continued the vigorous expansion begun in April, and the call for tires and accessories is increasing.

Bargain merchandise fast is becoming a matter of history, as even the few special sales events in progress stress quality more than price, as most of the goods offered was bought on a rising wholesale market. Small rural stores, as a whole, now are going ahead faster than the large establishments in urban centers, where wage increases have trailed by a wide margin the broad jumps in the prices of farm products.

Retail prices, which until a week or two ago had been slow to follow the higher trend of wholesale quotations, now are beginning to move ahead rapidly in all parts of the country. Thus far, consumers have offered little resistance to the revised price-tags, but some concern is felt regarding its continuance, as the administration's program to give increased purchasing power to wage and salary earners has been achieved in only fractional ratio to advancing merchandise costs.

Waitresses Wear Short Sleeves.

Boston (U.P.).—This summer for the first time since the restaurant was established more than a half century ago, waitresses at Thompson's Spa are permitted to wear short sleeves.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Silk—Business in Greige goods, according to trade interests, was practically at a standstill last week as a result of steps by mills to adjust themselves to the new code.

Coal—Bituminous production is still on the uptrend and is at a higher rate than the corresponding season last year and the year before, according to trade estimates.

Paper—Fine papers and summer specialties are meeting a good demand. Chemical pulp prices have been further advanced.

Wool—Receipts of domestic wool at Boston last week were 25,391,000 pounds, compared with 13,682,000 in the previous week. Total receipts to date this year, 147,465,900 pounds, against 100,890,700 pounds in the corresponding period last year.

Burlap—Prices have eased recently with declines in sterling, but trade interests describe the market as strong. South American buying has been active.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Gilt-edged securities provided the firmest feature on the stock exchange. Transatlantic issues were quoted well over parity, a fraction under the best for the day, awaiting Wall street reports. Oil and mining shares eased on selling from Paris, while Argentine rails dropped 1 to 2 points. The closing trend was cheerful.

Paris—Showing increasing effects of Wall street slump last week, all stocks on the bourse declined today, particularly international issues. The drop was caused more through the absence of buyers than any rush to sell. The closing was weak.

Berlin—A weak tone was registered on the boerse today.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were quiet today with prices steady. Silk advanced 2½ cents in quiet trading. Rayons were expected to advance before August 1. Woolens were quiet. Burlap was steady.

Bonds Firmer, With Average Prices Higher

Market Refuses to Follow Buoyant Rises; Sale, $10,785,000.

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—Bonds failed to follow the buoyant recovery of stocks today, but a number of substantial rallies in the secondary groups gave the list a fairly firm appearance despite scattered irregularities.

Trading was at a fast pace for the abbreviated session, sales totaling $10,785,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues edged up 1-10 of a point.

While the rails, after an earlier advance, were inclined to ease as a group, the utilities and industrials improved. The largest gains in the carrier groups were in some loans of the Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago & Northwestern, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate and Southern Railway. Certain issues of the Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific sold off from 2 to 3 points on light selling.

In the industrial and utility divisions the best showing was made by obligations of the International Hydroelectric System, International Telephone, Hudson Coal, B. F. Goodrich Co., McKesson, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron and Warner Bros.

The foreign sector was highly irregular. Argentine and some other South American issues yielded considerable ground.

Stock Crash Probe Immediately Urged

(United Press.)

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Stock Market Investigating Committee, was urged by Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, today to begin an immediate investigation of the recent collapse of stock prices.

Steiwer's action was taken after dispatches from New York said Pecora planned to question officials of the New York Stock Exchange.

"Today's papers," Steiwer's telegram to Pecora read, "carry story that Senate agents will start inquiry into cause of stock market crash 'within the next ten days.' As a member of subcommittee, I suggest this inquiry should be started without delay. If you feel restrained by motion agreed to by subcommittee on June 28, you should at once seek authority from subcommittee for immediate inquiry of stock market. I will be glad to support your effort in this behalf.

Stocks Cut Wide Slice Off Last Week's Loss

Striking Recoveries Follow Renewed Buoyancy; Gains Average 63 Points; Sales for Short Session Total 3,414,100 Shares.

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—Recovery was striking in many of the financial markets today. Stocks rallied swiftly during their three trading hours and closed with net gains of roughly 1 to 10 points, thereby cutting a wide swath into last week's losses.

Stocks began their day's work at noon and started with a rush, calmed slightly under quick profit-taking and additional offerings from weakened speculative accounts, and then swung into a sweeping advance that recalled their performances of the spring and early summer. Turnover was 3,414,100 shares.

Brisk short covering as well as orders from "bargain hunters" and a general reaction from last week's puncturing of the speculative balloon served the market well. At the close advances of 2 to 6 points were liberally spread over the list, while a number of "specialties" did much better. Metal, alcohol and rail issues were prominent, but the rise proved to be inclusive.

National Distillers gained 10, Industrial Rayon, Cerro de Pasco, Celanese, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Illinois Central, American Commercial Alcohol, Western Union, Norfolk & Western and Auburn 7 to 9 or so; American Water Works, Commercial Solvents, General Mills, Hercules Power and Bethlehem Steel in the neighborhood of 5 and 6. American Telephone, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville lifted 3 to 4 or better. U. S. Steel, American Can, Union Carbide, Kennecott, Anaconda, International Nickel and Chesapeake & Ohio added at least 2 points. U. S. Smelting boomed up 11¼ points to a new high.

The Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite finished at 83.4, up 6.3 points, compared with Friday's final of 76.6. The day's advance was the best since March 15.

Wall street's second thoughts on recent events brought the conclusion that a bad spill had been inevitable and that the correction was decidedly for the best, since it had undoubtedly shaken the hold of speculators, both large and small. Today's sharp recovery seemed somewhat in the nature of things, for it is seldom that the market moves violently in one direction without pausing to take the opposite tack. Banking quarters were still hoping for a period of quiet, believing the interests of business recovery could best be furthered by a sharp recession in speculative activity.

Midsummer is approaching and so far there have been only mild suggestions that a slackening of trade improvement might be at hand. Occurrence of at least a pause in the pace of revival would occasion no pessimism here in quarters which do not care to see speculative buying playing too prominent a role in the uplift of industrial production. Steel mills' operating rate appears to be tapering slightly and the time is probably close at hand when automobile companies will begin to pare their schedules, although July promises to be a very good month.

Sugar Is Higher Than Last Week

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—Raw sugar was steadier today, and refiners seemed a little more disposed to make commitments and at prices higher than those prevailing at the close of last week.

Offerings were comparatively light. The only sale confirmed was 7,000 bags of Cuban from store at 3.50, establishing the spot price at this basis.

Early irregularity in futures was followed by sharp upturns on the reappearance of outside buying with the market closing at net advances of 7 to 8 points. Sales were 35,850 tons.

The opening was irregular at 2 points decline to 1 point advance on a renewal of liquidation.

Wheat Steady At Thursday's Price Levels

Corn, Rye and Oats Gain; Traders Waiting on Washington.

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—Despite the announcement of two insolvencies, one of them huge, the grain markets advanced sharply today, but later reacted, influenced by uncertainties regarding conferences at Washington.

Wheat, rye and oats scored gains of 3 cents a bushel, and in some cases corn was up 2½ cents. For the most part, though, the corn market was weak owing to liquidation of big bankrupt speculative future delivery holdings.

Grain futures at the close were largely at the minimum prices fixed under emergency rules adopted by the Chicago Board of Trade during a three-day temporary stoppage resulting from unprecedented speculative hysteria that had hoisted prices skyward and then plunged the markets wildly downgrade in a volume of dealings never before equaled, a one-day total of more than 250,000,000 bushels.

Wheat Closes Steady.

Wheat today closed steady at the average of the closing prices of Thursday, with corn unchanged to 1⅝ cents up; oats, unchanged to 1¼ higher; rye, unchanged to ½ advance, and provisions 50 to 75 cents off.

Although it was known at the outset today that bankruptcy had overtaken one big daring speculator, who had grasped too long for millions of dollars on a rising market and been unable to extricate himself in time on a precipitate fall of prices, there were plenty of buyers for wheat and most other grains the moment business began. Under the emergency rules in force, there was no place for prices to go this morning except up. A possibility existed that wheat might run aloft as much as 8 cents today, but the actual maximum attained was 3 cents.

Liquidating sales in wheat developed considerable magnitude at intervals, but were readily absorbed on commission house orders until about noon.

Winnipeg Prices Jump.

Helping the upward swing of values here was the fact that the Winnipeg market had temporarily jumped more than 5 cents a bushel, responsive to overseas purchases of all wheat that had been offered abroad, about 2,000,000 bushels. In addition to broad export demand, trade leaders favorable to price upturns emphasized that almost a crop disaster existed in regard to United States wheat, rye, oats and other grains.

The deficit in regard to domestic new crop wheat, it was asserted, would mean an extremely close adjustment of supply and demand this season, regardless of the country's carry-over stock of wheat from last year's crop.

Fresh speculative buying of wheat and other grains died down, however, as news arrived from Washington pointing to possibility of extreme measures being adopted in trade conferences going on there with Government representatives. Adding to the disconcerting effect of curtailed speculative buying was a late increase of offerings, mostly a result of weakened marginal accounts and because of announcement that until further notice no indemnity trading would be permitted, thus abolishing any insurance on price changes. Wheat price reactions that ensued left the market flat at the lowest quotations allowed under the emergency rules.

Corn traders expressed belief at the close that liquidation of distressed speculative holdings of corn had been largely completed. Crop reports were that corn was rapidly deteriorating that oats condition could hardly be worse.

Steel's Output Still Remains At Former Top

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 24.—Steel production, on the average, still holds recent gains, and operations continue at 55 to 57 per cent of rated capacity in the Pittsburgh district. Current backlogs are reported sufficient to maintain this average over the month, though tonnages thereafter depend upon automotive assembling schedules and other factors.

Tin plate output remains active at approximately 95 per cent, but in this department some seasonal recession may be looked for. With railroad income increasing, a more liberal buying policy by transportation interests may develop, and publicly financed construction projects ultimately will require considerable in steel materials; these structural tonnages are not an actual reality, as yet.

Developments have been rapid in reference to operating costs and prices, and the trade is interested in the effects of the 15 per cent wage increase.

New Base Quotations.

New base quotations on finished steel may result in greater differentials than heretofore. The revised figures on finished descriptions for the third quarter have held steady, with the exception of hot-rolled strips, on which some shading occasionally is reported.

The advance of $1 per ton on pig iron followed the advancing trend in basic materials generally. Fuel prices have risen and under the new wage code further gains are likely. Furnace coke at Connellsville oven is quoted $2.25 and foundry coke $3, with premium grades ranging to $4.

Steel scrap at practically all centers is fairly strong at the recent advances. Heavy melting steel is quoted at $12.25, Pittsburgh district, and at $10.25, Chicago. Semifinished steel has been moving in good volume to finishing mills; regular quotations are applying on third-quarter business; billets and sheet bars are $26, Pittsburgh; forging billets, $31; and wire rods, $35, Pittsburgh.

Chicago Rate Slower.

Steel output in the Chicago district began the week at 60 per cent of capacity, with some slowing in new business and specifications. The dip in each last week was estimated at around 20 per cent of recent levels. Steel executives professed to believe that the decline was only temporary.

Automotive demand continued fairly active, while much was expected in the way of steel orders from the farm implement industry in the early fall. Outlook for this highly important user of steel was declared to be the best in several years. Announcement that the Government would speed the program of public work forecast an improvement in the structural demand. Recent awards for private projects involved slightly in excess of 1,900 tons, and included several industrial plant additions.

Announcement of a 15 per cent wage increase in the industry was expected to be followed by an advance in prices. Ruling prices, however, were unchanged except for pig iron, which followed an Eastern price advance of $1. Ruling prices were: Pig iron, No. 1 foundry, $17.50, and No. 2, $17; rail steel bars, 1.50c; bars, shapes, and soft steel bars, 1.70c.

Cantor Will Resume Stage Career—Columbia Bill Reviewed

Comedian Will Complete Film On West Coast

By Nelson B. Bell.

Eddie Cantor has changed his mind.

After three years of steadfast denunciation and denial of recurrent rumors that he was considering a return to the Broadway stage, the button-eyed comic now acknowledges that he is quite willing to take another whirl at a Main Stem stage part, provided it offers some possibility of being translated into terms of the cinema later.

That these late advices from the West Coast are not sheer whimsy seems to be evidenced by the fact that, having celebrated their nineteenth wedding anniversary last week, the Cantors have decided to make their home again on the East Coast.

Looking forward to this end, Mrs. Cantor and the five Cantor daughters embarked upon a leisurely trip from Los Angeles to New York aboard the S. S. Virginia last Sunday to resume their permanent residence on Manhattan Island.

Eddie will remain in Hollywood, for the time being, working on his fourth annual musical film production for Samuel Goldwyn, for release through United Artists.

This would be "Roman Scandals," of which a good deal has been heard of late, from the story by George S. Kaufman and Robert Sherwood—two boys well and favorably known in the American theater for a few such trifles as "The Royal Family," "Of Thee I Sing," "Dinner at Eight," "The Road to Rome," "Reunion in Vienna" and the likes of them and adapted to the screen by William Anthony McGuire, the mere tyro who wrote "The Three Musketeers," and numerous other substantial hits for the late Flo Ziegfeld.

It is estimated that it will be at least two months before the eminent Dr. Cantor will be able to leave California to join his family in New York. In the East, he expects to resume his literary (sic), radio and stage activities, with pictures as an avocation instead of his major occupation.

Thus is appears that much of his disavowal of further stage aspirations has been more cant than Cantor!

In "Roman Scandals," by the way, the fair-haired Gloria Stuart—most recently seen locally with James Dunn in "The Girl in 419," and with Raul Roulien in "It's Great to Be Alive"—will be Eddie Cantor's "love interest." The Messrs. Kaufman and Sherwood, it is said, fashioned a credible and human story for which the producer found he would require a trained and talented actress. A musical comedy ingenue wouldn't do.

So Mr. Goldwyn figuratively put the finger upon Miss Stuart about a month ago and requested the privilege of borrowing her services from Universal, a concession the junior of the Carl Laemmles found it possible to make only a day or so ago, so pressing were his needs for Miss Stuart on the nome lot.

Jack Connolly, former Washington representative of the Will H. Hays office, later Fox Movietone News impressario and now head man for Pathe News, is at it again.

Washington is already familiar with, and enthusiastic over, the special reel Mr. Connolly made of the Century of Progress Exposition out in Chicago—now in its second week as an auxiliary of "Double Harness," at RKO-Keith's—and yesterday another of his on-the-spur-of-the-moment "specials" was added to the same bill.

This new one takes the form of a special assemblage of footage on Wiley Post's arrival at Floyd Bennett Field from his record-breaking flight around the world.

The current release of Pathe News already embodies flashes of the Gen. Balbo reception in New York, but not the "special" treatment accorded the Oklahoman Cyclops.

It has to happen at least once a year. I mean the reunion of Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, starring partners of "What Price Glory" and many succeeding perpetuations of the Capt. Flagg-Sergt. Quirt motif.

This year they will be reunited for the only time during the season by Charles R. Rogers, independent producer for Paramount, in "No More Women"—a practically perfect title, the nature of their joint activities being what they always have been.

The story, an original by E. Richard Schayer, former Washington dramatic editor, will bring the pair together as deep-sea divers. Last year, it will be recalled, Vic and Eddie made "Guilty as Hell," the screen adaptation of "Riddle Me This," the stage play that served to open the last season of the National Theater Players, for Paramount and made a pretty fair job of it—Mr. Lowe, as usual, copping the gal!

Prof. Frank La Falce, the astute and erudite director of advertising and publicity for the Warner Brothers theaters in Washington and vicinity, leaves the Capital this morning for a fortnight's vacation in New York, Atlantic City, Newark, N. J., and points north, south, betwixt and between.

Prof. La Falce expects to view all five of the current shows on Broadway—shades of an opulent past!—splash about a bit in Atlantic City's cool surf and cooler steins and then let nature take its course, which, unlike that of Empire, is expected to be to the north and east.

Bong vo-yahdge, as we say in the pure Castilian!

The fact that Prof. La Falce is departing on his, may be taken as evidenc enough that Master William C. Ewing, of the same department of the same organization, is back from his two-with-pay, also spent to the north and east.

Bien venido, as the French would say!

Why know all of these furn languages if you never use them, say we.

City Manager Carter Barron, of the Loew interests in the National Capital, considerably steamed up by the prospect of a swell show, the high temperatures, excessive stupidity and other things, calls in person to make known that Gene Ford, an expert in such things, will return to Washington today, almost a week ahead of his professed schedule, to make ready for the first auditions and the inauguration of rehearsals for the "All-Washington Revue," soon to be presented upon the stage of Loew's Fox Theater, in pursuance of a successful former custom.

The first auditions will be held in the Willard Room of the Willard Hotel on next Monday, July 31, at 8 p. m., and on Tuesday, August 1, from 2 to 8 p. m. Rehearsals will be begun as soon as the results of the auditions are known.

To enter the lively competition for a place in this pretentious stage presentation, it is necessary to fill out and file with the Fox management a formal application blank, outlining with some thoroughness the capabilities that are deemed sufficient to warrant selection for a part in this professionally presented revue.

These application blanks may be obtained from, and deposited with, the dramatic desk of the five Washington papers or any Loew theater. Mine are at hand as this is written and will be passed out on the basis of "first come, first served."

Those left in the custody of this desk will be promptly submitted to the Loew executives having the matter in charge.

Another late evening caller is Mr. Robert Wile, avant courier, Paul Revereing in celebration of the many unique qualities of "Samarang," the romance of the pearl divers, coming to the Metropolitan on Friday.

The most exciting sequences in this unique picture are those depicting the undersea battle to the death of an octopus and a shark—natural enemies, like the mongoose and cobra of that celebrated earlier combat to the death, or the tiger and the python in Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive." Just a couple of nice little fellows trying to tear each other in two!

Mr. Wile reports many other unusual features of "Samarang"—which, in case you hadn't heard, is played entirely by equatorial natives. Ahmang, Sar-Yu and Ko-Har, for the most part—that will probably find their way into type in this space on later days of the week.

As an example, however, he discloses that these natives, living only 40 miles from the equator and wearing nothing but breech-clouts, spend all of their daylight hours in the sun and diving in the water, yet do not sunburn and are as light of skin as Nordics.

You may be figuring that one out while we are whipping the rest into shape.

There is a very elegant piece of memory testing in "Reform Girl," now on the Columbia screen.

In the reformatory scene where Lydia Johnson is called into the matron's office to receive her discharge, the matron directs a trusty to bring her the record of No. 1416 from the files. The office trusty thereupon goes straight to an alphabetical file and picks out the number!

And I can't even remember the 26 letters of the alphabet by number, let alone a few thousand girls' names! That might be easier though, at that, come to think about it.

So today we come down to earth. That is, we move from the fifth floor down to the second, which amounts to the same thing.

Columbia.

"REFORM GIRL," Tower Productions picturization of an original story by George Wallace Sayre, featuring Noel Francis, "Skeeters" Gallagher, Robert Ellis, Hale Hamilton and Dorothy Peterson. Directed by Sam Newfield. Reviewed Monday morning.

Perhaps it would be just as well to arrive a little late at the Columbia, if you contemplate going there this week.

By missing, say, the first hour and ten minutes of the program you will arrive opportunely to surrender to the seasonable inanities of "Fanny in the Lions' Den," another chapter in the musicalized romance of Fanny Zilch, being rescued week after week from the clutches of the mustachioed villain by the wavy-haired tenor, two of the most engaging caricatures that ever came out of a bottle of Higgins ink, and Walter Catlett, Joyce Compton, et al., romping through the absurdities of one of Mack Sennett's lustier comedies, "The Big Fibber."

Miss Zilch's predicament this week is such as to cause even a Clyde Beatty to blush at his ineptness with jungle cats.

Mr. Catlett and his associates, while they can not feel any overweening enthusiasm for the material at their disposal, make the most of a tolerably bad bargain and salvage a few extravagant situations involving an errant husband, a burglar pal and a more or less unsuspecting wife and daughter, on the side of a mild laughability.

These items of the program, interlarded with a seemingly unnecessary surplusage of screen trailers on all of the Loew attractions current and coming, despite their casual imperfections, are apt to exert a greater appeal to the discriminating amusement sense than "Reform Girl," the ostensible feature of the entertainment.

"Reform Girl," I regret to report, betrays flagrant evidences of having been written on the back of an envelope and filmed in its entirety between daybreak and dusk—all on the same day.

The dialogue is ineffectual and the development of a familiar plot idea so sketchily episodic as to destroy any cumulative effect of a smooth dramatic continuity by which the play might otherwise have profited.

The recital of the dreary events attending the attempt to discredit a candidate for governor by "framing" him with a girl just released from prison on the pretext that she is his daughter, kidnaped at the age of 3, is thoroughly trite up to the very last flash. Then she turns out really to be the kidnaped child, grown to the age of 20, as you have suspected she might be for some time, now.

Noel Francis, as the girl, does the most commendable job of any member of the cast, with the possible exception of Robert Ellis, the arch crook. "Skeets" Gallagher, Hale Hamilton, Dorothy Peterson and Stanley Smith are sacrificed to flagrantly inferior roles.

STANLEY WHITEWAY

Miss Ethel Barrymore, queen of the stage's royal family, the announcement of whose impending debut as a star of motion picture theater vaudeville has aroused an unprecedented impatience for the coming of Friday, July 28. On that date Miss Barrymore will appear on the stage of the Earle Theater in a revival of Sir James M. Barrie's dramatic playlet, "The Twelve Pound Look," a brief vehicle in which she has scored many previous triumphs on Washington and other stages.

Nats Beat A's Twice, 5-2 and 10-6, Retake Lead Over Idle Yanks

This Morning

Philadelphia, July 24.

"BOIKE and Boig" for Washington was the announcement through the amplifiers in broad Brooklynese as the Nats and A's took the field in the first game of their double-header today.

Jimmy Foxx is rapidly getting in Babe Ruth's class any way you look at him. When James fails to beat an infield hit, he dismisses the first base coach, takes up the coaching duties there, and avoids that long walk back to the bench.

Lefty Grove doesn't run 'em out any more, even when there's a chance to prevent double plays. He was approximately ten feet from home plate when Cronin and Kuhel completed a double-play on his grounder in the first game.

There was a fine bit of skullless-duggery in the fifth inning of that first game when Mickey Cochrane tagged both Schulte and Harris out at third base for a double-play. Schulte won the reinforced dunce cap.

Cochrane had run Schulte back to the bag after Grove fielded Bluege's bounce and rifled it to the plate, but Dave Harris was on the base when Schulte returned. With both men standing on the bag, Cochrane tagged out Harris, who was not entitled to the base, and then Schulte for some reason of his very own stepped off the bag also, whereupon Cochrane tagged him also.

Down in Washington, Joe Cronin is a fiery, spirited and inspiring leader for his men. Up here in Philadelphia, he's a consummate crab, protesting every decision, fussing continually with the umpries and otherwise demanding his rights.

Somebody in the A's dugout must have had strings on Cronin's bunt in the ninth inning of the first game. It was a perfect safety that caught the entire Athletic infield asleep and Cronin would have beat it by 10 feet, but the ball turned a sharp left angle half way to third base and spun foul by an inch.

Foxx, Coleman and Johnson represented the A's last hope in the ninth inning of the first game. Russell struck 'em all out on approximately 10 pitched balls, every strike a swing that didn't net so much as a foul.

Fred Schulte was responsible for the Nats' fourth run of the first game. He barged into Bishop like a locomotive on the loose and broke up a sure double play that permitted Bluege to score from third base. It looked like a case for the coroner when Schulte sailed into the bag.

These Philly fans are about as appreciative as a fellow who has just been condemned. Joe Kuhel skidded up against the screen in short right field, made an unconscious catch of Earnshaw's foul, skinned his right arm from wrist to elbow and dropped the ball. The play was greeted with terrific silence.

The A's were limited to one run in the third inning because Schulte came through with a masterful play. On the dead run he caught Cochrane's liner and pausing not to regain his balance threw a perfect strike across the heart of the plate to double Bishop who tried to score from third.

You could have knocked the press box occupants over with a deleted feather when McAfee

High Pressure and Overconfidence Blamed for Loss to Britons.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP).—Second-guessing the ill-fated American Davis Cup tennis expeditions during the past half-dozen years has become a popular midsummer sport, but the consequences of the latest and by far the most painful setback to the United States team in Paris seem likely to have more far-reaching effect than ever before.

The American Davis Cup strategy and management was under considerable fire at the last annual convention of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Western delegates especially, led by the new president, Harry S. Knox, now located at Aberdeen, Wash, certainly will demand a full and critical investigation, especially on the basis of current cable dispatches giving the impression that Wilmer Allison and Ellsworth Vines, the single aces, were either overtrained or worked up to an excessive nervous pitch or both.

Withhold Criticism.

Knox and other officials of the U. S. L. T. A., including Holcombe Ward, the first vice president, confined themselves today to congratulating the British on a "fine victory." They withheld any criticism pending fuller information, but newspaper observers, both here and abroad, attacked the methods of Bernon S. Prentice, team captain, as well as Mercer Beasley, the Princeton tennis coach, who was "unofficially" associated with the American players.

The consensus apparently is that a combination of "high pressure" and over-confidence wrecked this year's term, which knew it was expected to atone for past disappointments by bringing the famous cup back to the United States this year.

British Overlooked.

In effect they were told: "The French are on the downgrade and this is the year." But the British apparently were overlooked, for the second time in three years, despite the warning they served in eliminating Australia.

Vines emerges as the chief "victim" of pressure. Not only did the American champion go into the interzone series after a year of almost continuous competition on three continents, but he played with the knowledge that lucrative offers to turn professional were in the background.

Vines' Mental Handicap.

Putting it bluntly, the New York World-Telegram's tennis critic says today: "Vines, more sensitive than most people imagine, realized he had to maintain his reputation to collect the professional swag. That mental handicap, coupled with Davis Cup anchors, virtually sank him. He tried to be an Atlas without the shoulders."

Several weeks ago Vines was linked with an extravagant offer of $100,000 for a professional tour with Big Bill Tilden's troupe, after the close of the 1933 season. The American amateur champion is known to have discussed this venture. In addition he was approached on an offer to become manager of a chain of sporting goods stores.

154 Players Entered In Public Links Golf

New York, July 24 (U.P.).—One hundred and fifty-four players have entered for the twelfth annual amateur public links golf championship, to be played August 1 to 5 on the Eastmoreland golf course, Portland, Oreg., the United States Golf Association announced today.

This field is considerably smaller than the 213 who entered for the Louisville tourney last year. Russell C. Meade, of Portland, will tee off first at 8 a. m., August 1, paired with Frank Strafici, of Brooklyn.

France Relies on Cochet in Cup Play

Merlin, Newcomer, Other Singles Hope; British to Stand Pat.

PARIS, July 24 (AP).—The burden of retaining the Davis Cup, emblem of international tennis supremacy, for France was placed squarely on the sturdy shoulders of Henri Cochet today as Jean Borotra definitely declined a singles assignment.

Cochet and Andre Merlin, fourth ranking French youngster, were named by Rene Lacoste, nonplaying French captain, to carry the singles battle against England, upset conqueror of the United States in the interzone finals. Borotra will pair with the veteran Jacques Brugnon in the doubles.

Lacoste said he was confident Cochet would rise to his old heights, take both his matches, and that Borotra and Brugnon, Wimbledon champions, would win the necessary third point.

Lacoste also expressed confidence in the slightly built, left-handed Merlin, saying the youngster was picked in preference to more experienced players because he "has the will to win."

British Team Stands.

The same English team whose stunning and dramatic 4-to-1 defeat of Ellsworth Vines and company was still a reverberating topic today will met the French in the challenge round Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Fred Perry and Henry W. (Bunny) Austin will play singles and Perry will join with George Patrick Hughes in doubles.

The physical breakdown of the American singles aces, Vines and Wilmer Allison, brought sharp criticism of American training methods and of Capt. Bernon Prentice from French tennis experts.

Skeptical for years of the rigorous American methods, the experts were outspoken in their criticism, Jean Augustin, of the Paris Midi, dean of the French tennis writers, charging that "the principal American adversary was their own captain."

"How can any country confide its sporting interests in a man who presented two players of great value resembling cadavers instead of athletes?" he asked.

Lenglen Criticizes.

Suzanne Lenglen, former ranking woman player of the world, called the American training "unreasonable." Didier Poulain, of L'Auto, said that Allison "passed the summit of his form before the matches and Vines was bandaged like a mummy, but still was permitted to practice Friday. This is a curious procedure."

Vines himself came to the defense of Prentice, especially as to his continuing against Perry after Austin already had clinched the victory for England and when he was in obvious distress.

Vines said Capt. Prentice repeatedly urged him to retire before he finally collapsed on the court and that he had been given the best of care.

"It was only through my own insistence that he (Prentice) let me continue," Vines told the Associated Press.

The American team will be guests of the English players at luncheon tomorrow and later will attend a tea given by Ambassador Jesse Isidor Straus in their honor. They will sail for home Wednesday.

Uhle, Vet Pitcher, Signed by Yankees

New York, July 24 (AP).—The New York Yankees today signed George Uhle, veteran Cleveland and Detroit right hander, to a contract. Uhle was signed by the New York Giants early this season, but was cut adrift after a few weeks.

To make room for Uhle on the roster, the Yankees sent Johnny Broaca, former Yale pitching star, to the Newark Bears of the International League on option.

Von Reedon 7-5 Choice Over Dougan

Fighters Meet Again Over 10-Rounder in Feature at Laurel Tonight.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

TRUDGING along the fistic highway, Leroy Dougan and Charley Von Reedon find themselves crossing paths again tonight at Twin City Arena in the feature ten-round bout. Their argument tops a 32-round card of fisticuffing, with another promising fight looming in the Ray Bowen-Roy Manley eight-round semifinal affair.

Alhough well supported, verbally, Dougan's chances attracted only small change along the Rialto yesterday. Odds of 7-5 were quoted on Von Reedon with takers few and far between. He was not installed as favorite without deliberate consideration, however.

Von Reedon Won Last Time.

Only two weeks ago he pounded his way to a close but well-deserved victory over the tough little Scotchman at the Laurel punchbowl in an eight-rounder. He fought at a weight several pounds below normalcy, a handicap not hanging over his head tonight. Von Reedon will tip the commission's scales at 126 pounds, or with enough beef behind his punches to make them hurt.

Dougan will come in at approximately 122 pounds, or about the same as in his first bout with Von

Frank Frisch Named Card Manager

Change Made as Team Drops Back Into Second Flight.

Street Released in Belief That Shift Will Aid Club in Race.

ST. LOUIS, July 24 (AP).—Frankie Frisch, captain and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals since 1927, was appointed manager of the team today, succeeding Charles E. "Gabby" Street.

President Sam Breadon said he was making the change in the "hope that under Frisch's leadership the Cardinals will slough off their slump and make this a winning year after all."

The Cards dropped into second division Saturday and are now eight games behind the league-leading Giants. Optimistic fans, however, point out that the Cards of 1930 won a pennant after being twelve games behind as late as August 1.

Follows Old Custom.

In appointing Frisch, Breadon followed a custom inaugurated several years ago of naming a new manager whenever he considered results unsatisfactory.

Street, who took charge in 1930, held the reins longer than any manager since Branch Rickey was deposed in 1925. Rogers Hornsby, Bob O'Farrell, Bill McKechnie and Billy Southworth followed each other in quick succession until Street was named.

Frisch was obtained from the Giants in 1926 in a trade for Hornsby. He had been signed by John McGraw in 1919 upon his graduation from Fordham University and was an important factor in the Giants' pennant victories of 1921-22-23-24. His batting average for 14 years in major league baseball has been .321.

"Of course, like all ball players, I have been ambitious to become a manager, and I am naturally pleased to get my opportunity," Frisch said. "I haven't had much chance to plan as yet, I do think, though, that if our club comes out of its present hitting slump, we should 'go somewhere' in this race."

Street, who won three pennants and a world's championship for the Cards, took the change philosophically.

"Mr. Breadon gave me the job, and it was his to take away when he saw fit," Street said. "My baseball has been sound, as sound as during the years when he won. But I am leaving with the best of feeling for Mr. Breadon. He gave me a great chance when he made me manager, and I am grateful for it. I'm going home to Joplin, Mo., today and rest."

Somerville to Defend U. S. Amateur Crown

Montreal, July 24 (AP).—C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canadian holder of the United States amateur golf title, returned today from his unsuccessful invasion of England with the announcement that he had only two more tournaments in mind this year, defense of his American crown at Cincinnati in September and the Canadian open in August.

Somerville was defeated by George T. Dunlap, jr., of New York, American Walker Cup player, in the sixth round of the British amateur and finished twenty-first in the open with a score of 304.

Sarazen Decides On P. G. A. Golf Entry

Rochester, N. Y., July 24.

Gene Sarazen, former American and British open golf champion, here on an exhibition match, today stated that he would play in the P. G. A. championship scheduled to open at Milwaukee on August 8.

Sarazen's decision to compete was made shortly after it was announced that all Ryder Cup players would be exempt from qualifying for the P. G. A. proper, he said.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Pa., July 24.—The reports are a bit more pleasing today, folks. It seems that the Nats won themselves a pair of ball games this afternoon and climbed back on top of the pennant race over the idle forms of the Yankees, who were remaining strictly neutral up in the Bronx.

Grove and Earnshaw. They used to be a couple of names to conjure with. Today, they were just a couple of names. Mister Grove pitched himself and the Athletics to a 5 to 2 defeat in the introductory performance this afternoon and Mr. Earnshaw fared worse in the climactic encounter which the Nats won by a 10 to 6 count.

Lead by Half Game.

Thus Washington wiped out that half-game deficit in the scramble for first place and claimed the lead by the same margin. It is getting to be an old Washington custom, this mopping up double-headers, for the Nats have now won both ends of the last five twin bills, having seen the error of their ways in the early season when they were splitting the spoils in five double-headers.

Bob Burke and Jack Russell teamed up to beat Grove in that first game in the course of which the A's made only four hits—two off Burke in five innings and two off Russell in four, which is almost self-explanatory if you want the meat of the ball game.

The A's were scoring only in terms of home runs in that first game, with Mickey Cochrane and Bob Johnson hitting the ball out of the park in the fourth and eighth innings, respectively, but only one other man reached third base against Burke and none advanced beyond first against Russell, whose farewell gesture was striking out Foxx, Coleman and Johnson in the ninth.

That second game packed a thrill for the 12,000 Philly fans only in the ninth. It seems that Bill McAfee had relieved Al Crowder back in the sixth inning and when McAfee wasn't hitting home runs, he was pitching 'em.

Three Home Runs.

Anyway, McAfee had a 10-1 lead going into the ninth and what should happen but Higgins hits the ball over the right-field fence. And then Pinch Hitter Coleman hits the ball over the right-field fence, Cramer singled, Cochrane singled and Jimmy Foxx hits the ball on top of the center-field roof for the fifth run of the inning which closed the gap to 10-6, which was the final score when Jack Russell got the third man out on a long fly to Goslin.

There was ample excuse for McAfee's blow-up. In the seventh inning he smacked the ball high up in the left-field stands for a home run, which was the first indication during his big league career that he could hit at all, and then in the ninth he hit an even longer wallop over Cramer's head for a triple to center. He did not have his stuff when he went back to the mound in the ninth.

The Nats wasted little time with

Wightman Cuppers Arrive in America

British Women Will Play in Maidstone Tourney on July 30-31.

New York, July 24 (AP).—The British Wightman Cup team, which will face America's picked women tennis players at Forest Hills August 4 and 5, arrived in New York aboard the Britannic today.

The team is composed of Dorothy Round, who gave Helen Wills Moody such a battle in the Wimbledon finals; Betty Nuthall, Mary Heeley, Margaret Scriven, winner of the French hard-court championship; Freda James and Mrs. L. R. C. Michell.

Of these only Miss Nuthall, Mrs. Michell and Miss Round have had Wightman Cup experience. Miss Nuthall played on the 1927-28-29-31-32 teams; Mrs. Michell, the former Peggy Saungers, on the 1928-29-32 squads, and Miss Round in 1931 and 1932.

The invaders will get their first taste of competition in the Maidstone Invitation at East Hampton July 30-31. Then will follow the cup matches. They also will play in the national championships at Forest Hills and the national mixed doubles at Boston.

Gene Mako Advances In Illinois Net Play

Chicago, July 24 (AP).—Gene Mako, young Los Angeles star, opened his bid for the Illinois State tennis title today with an easy 6—1, 6—2 victory over T. Weller Kimball, of Chicago.

Jack Tidball, another Los Angeles ace, who holds the National intercollegiate championship, drew a bye and will start play tomorrow. He will meet Lee Kulp, of Chicago.

Three out-of-town players, Herbert Sample, of Cleveland; L. W. Fisher, New York, and Harold Baer, Newcastle, Pa., were eliminated in mild upsets. Herman Ries defeated Sample, 6—0, 6—2, and Albert Winston, Chicago, dropped Fisher by the same scores. Baer lost to Robert O'Connor, Chicago, 6—2, 6—2.

Gene D. Fails at Close of Sprint

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 24 (AP).—Mumsie, a 2-year-old daughter of Bubbling Over, racing in the colors of C. Koerner, a former jockey, got up in the last few strides to win the fifth race, a claiming affair, today at Arlington Park.

Gene D., the public choice, darted to the front at the start of the 6-furlong event, and, with Cotton Club in close pursuit, showed the way to the stretch bend. Jockey Decamilles made his move on Mumsie in the middle of the turn, conquered Cotton Club and staged a lively finish to beat out Gene D. in 1:13 3-5.

A vigorous ride by Jockey Bobby Jones brought J. A. Nix's Gay World home in the sixth at 1 mile. Mr. Joe and Big Red cut out the early pace, with the latter faltering as Gay World moved up. Mr. Joe held on going into the stretch, but was unable to withstand Gay World's final charge. Mr. Joe, however, managed to outlast Red Roamer for the place.

Gay World's time was 1:38 2-5, and he paid $4.58 in the $2 mutuels.

An accident marred the running of the seventh race, when Jockey M. Parke was trampled upon by his mount, Beaver. Parke was taken off the track unconscious and rushed to the emergency hospital. It was reported that the boy's injuries were not serious. Beaver threw the lad as the barrier was sprung.

Fire Flash Takes Feature.

Latonia, July 24 (AP).—This was a day of repeaters and doubles at the Mildale course. Winners of four of the first five races, including the feature attraction, were repeaters, while the successful doubles were completed by the popular Greentree Stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney and Apprentice G. Miller.

J. H. Gaines' Fire Flash duplicated his recent winning performance to annex the Fountain News Shoppe purse for older sprinters. Collaring Cayuga in the first half mile, the Stimulus filly took the lead in the stretch and held it to score by a length. Volwood closed with a rush to beat Smear for the place. Despite her apparent good form, Fire Flash was overlooked in betting, paying her backers $18.60. Patsyette was backed into 6-to-5 favoritism, but never was in contention.

Filter N. Y. Winner.

Empire City Race Track, New York, July 24 (A.P.).—Filter, which showed good form in Maryland last fall, displayed marked improvement over his one previous effort this year to drive home a daylight winner of the Equality Purse of about 6 furlongs here this afternoon. The Howe Stable's gelding, closing at 8 to 1, after being quoted as high as 12, was up to beat J. H. Louchheim's Fancy Flight by a length. Many thought Integrity had earned the place by a nose but the judges saw differently. The time was 1:09.

Included among Filter's victims was the four-time winner, Flying Sailor, which could not get to the front as he likes to. The colt dropped back after racing close to the pace in the first 5 furlongs.

Fancy Flight had a world of early foot and led the parade a merry chase most of the way. She ran Wedding Ring into defeat in the first half mile, then Filter loomed as the one to beat. Fancy Flight shortened her stride perceptibly in the last furlong and Filter flew past her to win going away.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

POKER, the famous old American game, finds one of its chief exponents in Pierce Marks who, after 47 years, is still a regular player in a game that was organized in Marcy, Wis., nearly half a century ago. The game is always the same—seven card stud. It is always played at the same place three nights a week, and Marks is always there.

It is hardly a gambling game, for rules hold bets to a nickel or less; and it keeps no man away from home at night, because sessions end promptly at 10:30 o'clock, the one exception being that he who calls for a deal after 10:30 must treat all players. Only once has Marks ever bet more than five cents. That was when a city slicker tried to give him a lesson in poker—the city fellow, who held queens in a full house, did not think that Marks had kings, which he had.

The jaw bone shown above illustrates one of the strangest cases of dental formations known to science. Layard's whale, a rare species, has but two well-formed lower teeth which actually hook over the upper jaw, keeping the mouth partially closed. There is reason to believe that the deformity will eventually lead to extinction of the species.

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Arlington Park, July 25.

Jack Westrope took the day off today and gave friend Bennings and the bookies a chance. Bennings was unable to take full advantage of the opportunity offered and pulled up with two winners, plus his usual quota in the money. However, the bookies cleaned up. Some of the wise boys had a few good things they just had to put over. They succeeded. One of this group was La Salle. I can't kick, however. I've been in on a few lately myself. BILL.

First Race—Even Play ran an even race for me the other day. That effort might have been needed for tune-up purposes. This spot looks like the one. Alcorah, another that I've leaned to, seems to be a money proposition. General Parth for the show end.

Second Race—Blackstrap appears to be the class of these sprinters. I see no reason for mistakes. Dark Mist may be the one to cause trouble. Eskimo can't be overlooked entirely. About time to pop up with that occasional good race.

Third Race—Kummel ran a bang-up second for me the last time out and can better that effort, I'm sure. No standout here but worth an across-the-board wager. Clear for the place and Happy Anne to show.

Fourth Race—Surety was a long time running up to those good trials but came through in fine style the other day. Might leave the maiden ranks at a substantial mutuel tomorrow. My old friend, Dr. Klein will be out there winging and may not stop. Louandre to show.

Fifth Race—Looks like the break of the barrier and another victory for Wise Daughter. If anything makes it a contest, it will be Some Pomp. Contessa to complete the money picture.

Sixth Race—Big Beau is speedy right now and appears ripe for a decision in a test of this kind. Karl Eitel is in fine shape and will be ready if the top fellow makes any mistakes. Commuter to take care of the others.

Seventh Race—This is a very open race. Any one of six horses can be figured on top. Personally, I'm going to Gaillardia, King Pin and Batting On.

Eighth Race—I'm going to take my chances with Islam in the final. It's a tough field, however. War and Damascene for the other paying positions.

G. U. Track Coach Dodges 4-Minute Mile Controversy

Ever since that curly-headed Oxford student, Jack Lovelock, sailed through the mile run in Princeton's Palmer Stadium in the unprecedented time of 4:07.6, there has been much argument, pro and con, as to whether or not man can cover this distance in 4 minutes flat. Lovelock, whose performance established him as somewhat of an iconoclast insofar as track traditions are concerned, is favored by the pro element to accomplish the feat, while the con contingent maintains stoutly that it can not be done.

If there is one man in Washington who is entitled to an opinion in the matter, it is Jim Mulligan, track coach at Georgetown University. Man and boy, Mulligan has been an ardent follower of cinder track affairs for the past 30 years, having been quite a quarter-miler in the good old days. When directly queried on the 4-minute controversy, Mr. Mulligan dodged the issue with one master stroke.

Saw Lovelock Run.

"Well, it might be done, and then again it might not. If it is done, who will do it?" answered the track coach in traditional manner, replying to one query by asking another. "I saw Lovelock do the mile at Cambridge against Harvard in 4:12.3—slow time for the ideal track and weather conditions prevailing. His slow time was due to not being paced fast enough in the first three-quarters. I think that he might have done 4:06 had his opposition been faster."

Which would lead one to believe that Lovelock is not capable of better than 4:06 under any conditions. But, not so, according to Mr. Mulligan.

"I won't say he is capable of a 4-minute mile, but if he isn't, no man alive is. He finished at Cambridge on his toes, and ran about a quarter-mile past the finish. Which proves that the distance doesn't tire him."

"A very good race would result if Lovelock, Bonthron and Cunningham were matched together. With these three fighting it out; a 4-minute or a 4:02 mile might conceivably be clocked up by the winner. On the other hand, we might have a repetition of the Olympic mile in 1912, when Kiviet, Jones and Tabor were so busy fighting it out that the Englishman Jackson, who didn't rank with any of the trio, had an easy time pulling across the line in front."

Jones Great Miler.

Coach Mulligan then launched into a description of the running ability of John Paul Jones, whom he considers America's greatest gift to the mile-running game.

"I know a lot of people will disagree with this opinion, probably to the extent of giving me the merry ha, ha. But ask any track coach. Jones didn't set any phenomenal times, but he won all his races. Had he been up against faster opponents, his time would have been better. I believe he would have beaten Joie Ray and Glenn Cunningham—and done the mile in 4:09 in doing it."

Coach Mulligan was again reminded that he was expected to settle the controversy about the four-minute rule.

"As I said before, Lovelock might do it, and then, again, he might not. But if he can't do it, no one can."

Western Is Led by Westland, Hankinson

By Dillon Graham.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 24 (AP).—A driving rainstorm kept par from being rocked groggy today by the crisp shots flying off the clubs of Jack Westland and Maurice Hankinson, in the first half of the Western amateur golf tournament's 36-hole qualifying test.

But the storm, which caught Westland and Hankinson around the sixteenth hole of the Country Club course, blew their hopes away as completely as it ripped the score sheets off the bulletin board.

Westland, the Walker Cup player from Chicago, finished with a 71 for the day's low score, while young Hankinson, of Oklahoma City, was a shot behind. Playing beautiful golf, Westland and Hankinson were two under par through the sixteenth hole.

The Chicagoan, who was runner-up in the 1931 national amateur, had strung three birdies in a row on the first nine, to score 33, two under par. Hankinson had 34.

Vinson, Eaton Tied.

Two others, Gene Vinson, of Meridian, Miss., and Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, came in late with 72's. Keefe Carter, the 1925 winner, was next with a 73 to give Oklahoma City three of the first five scorers. His score was acquired through two steady nines of 37—36.

Five players, including Mike Roach, of St. Louis; Jack Munger, of Dallas, and Chasteen Harris, a former Southern champion of Memphis, were bracketed at 74, while four others had 75's. Johnny Lehman, of Chicago, last year's medalist, was one of these.

Billy Howell, of Richmond, had a 76, and On Armstrong, of Aurora, Ill., had 77. Walter Emery, the intercollegiate champion of Oklahoma City, was far back with an 81, along with Emmet Spicer, of Memphis, former Southern champion, while Rodney Bliss, of Omaha, another college star, had 84, and Earl Strokes, of Louisville, runner-up in the Southern championship last month, had 87.

Seeded Players Advance in Public Parks Tennis Championship Tourney

Auto Injury Eliminates Pat Deck

Quarter-Finals Reached by Six in Men's Singles Event.

Mesmer, Ritzenberg Extend O'Neil, Herman in Their Matches.

FAVORITES continued to triumph yesterday as the Public Parks tennis championship rolled steadily toward the apparently inevitable battle between the five leading contenders for the singles title. No seeded player has yet been eliminated in play, and all, with the exception of Dean Judd and Pat Deck, have advanced to the fifth round.

Judd plays Hugh Trigg in the only men's singles match listed for today, for the right to play against one of the heavier favorites in the quarter-finals.

Pat Deck will be prevented from further participation by an arm injury sustained in an automobile accident.

Yesterday's matches in the men's singles again found all the favorites defeating their opponents in straight sets, with the exception of Maurice O'Neil and Gene Hermann.

Mesmer Puts Up Battle.

Fred Mesmer carried O'Neil to three sets by winning the opening engagement, 5—7. O'Neil took the next two sets, 6—3, 6—3 to clinch the match.

Gene Hermann found Hy Ritzenberg more difficult opposition than any he had encountered up to the fourth round. Hermann won the first set, 10—8, but dropped the second without winning a single game. He rallied, however, to take the deciding set, 6—4.

Activity today centers mainly around the doubles matches, with only one men's and three women's singles matches being carded.

Five Britishers Victims at Seabright

By B. Gregory Hewlett.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 24 (AP).—Some of America's lesser lights in the world of tennis gathered a small measure of revenge for their Davis Cup team's surprise defeat by England, by removing five Britishers from the forty-sixth annual invitation tournament of the Seabright Cricket and Tennis Club in the first round today.

The downfall of the youths from the other side of the Atlantic, all members of the touring Oxford-Cambridge team, and Helen Jacobs losing one set in opening the defense of the bowl she won last year, were the only happenings that ranked above the steady stream of seeded players in both men's and women's divisions into the second round.

No Upsets Recorded.

The field of 32 competitors in each division was cut directly in half during the day's activity, and there were no upsets to mar the proceedings. Even the elimination of five of the six Englishmen entered was not classed as a surprise, as all faced sturdy foes.

Of the half-dozen, only G. C. Frank was able to pull through into the second round. He defeated Edward W. Burns, jr., of New York, 6—4, 6—2. B. K. Burnett was downed in straight sets by slender Robert "Lefty" Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; James W. Nuthall was subdued by Samuel E. Gilpin 2d, of Philadelphia, 6—1, 10—8; P. S. Young's hopes were spoiled by Martin Buxby, of Miami, who won, 6—0, 6—4; W. F. Moss dropped a 6—4, 6—3 decision to John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., and D. G. Freshwater, seemingly the best of the group, was conquered by Karl Kamrath, another Texan, in the hardest battle, 4—6, 6—1, 6—1.

Loses Her First Set.

Miss Jacobs, present tennis queen of the United States, who failed to impress favorably despite the fact she practiced here all last week, lost her first set to Mrs. Carolyn Hirsch, of New York, 5—7, before getting the range. Miss Hirsch, who usually would be no match for the Berkeley girl, then folded up under the strain and Miss Jacobs won the last two sets, 6—2, 6—1.

Sidney Wood, jr., of New York, top-seeded among the men by virtue of his victory in this historic tournament last year, led the way into the second round by overcoming H. Hunter Lott, jr., of Philadelphia, 8—6, 6—2, in an uninteresting duel.

Shields Is Victorious.

Frank Shields, ranked just below Wood and Frankie Parker, eliminated Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash., by the same score, and Gregory S. Mangin, the national indoor titlist who is seeded fourth, overpowered George F. Roll, of Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—4.

Tomorrow's second round will bring together Wood and Percy Kynaston, of New York; Grant against Bryan, Shields vs. Hines, Gilpin vs. Upshur Morehead, of Washington, D. C.; Parker vs. Frank, Alonso vs. Busby, Mangin vs. McDiarmid and Kahrath vs. Doeg.

Eldred Golf Leader.

Pittsburgh, July 24 (AP).—Vincent Eldred, of Pittsburgh, former Pennsylvania open champion, today led the four national P. G. A. tournament qualifiers for the Pittsburgh district with a 36-hole score of 147.

Troy Golf Pro Has 63-68 Card

Troy, N. Y., July 24 (AP).—Posting dazzling subpar rounds of 63—68 for a 36-hole total of 131, a competitive record for the district, Eddie Schultz, Troy Country Club professional, today led the five qualifiers of Northeastern New York for the National P. G. A. tournament at Milwaukee August 8-13.

Playing on his home club layout, on which par is 71, Schultz bagged 15 birdies and was over par on only three holes in his two rounds as he led the nearest qualifier, Tom Creavy, of Albany, by 13 strokes. Creavy, 1931 P. G. A. champion and semifinalist last year, had a pair of 72's.

Ed Brown, of Albany, and George Pulver, of Saratoga Spring, each had 36-hole totals of 145 and Alex Gerlak, of Catskill, posted a 146 to round out the district's qualifiers for the national event.

Other seeded players who won their matches were Wilbur Hess, Houston, Tex., State champion, who downed Don Longscope, Houston, 6—1, 6—3, and Frank Broida, Pittsburgh, former Harvard tennis star, who defeated C. T. Richardson, tuxedo Park, N. Y., 6—0, 6—1.

Seay and Rippy Battle Today on Links

Other Semifinal Matches Slated at Rock Creek and East Potomac.

HOT battles loom over the bunkered courses of Rock Creek and East Potomac today when semifinal matches in the championship flights of the District Public Links golf tournament will be played.

W. W. Seay, who yesterday eliminated Walter Barrett, 4 and 3, will engage Claude Rippy, lanky Carolinian, this morning at 9 o'clock in a semifinal match at Rock Creek. The winner of this contest will meet John Baer, the medalist, in the finals next Monday. Baer already has won three of his matches, and municipal golf observers predict Rippy will be his opponent.

Downey Faces Sweeney.

No championship flight matches took place yesterday at East Potomac, but today John Downey, East Potomac Spring title holder, will take on Lee Sweeney, and Harlan Will, medalist, has a tentative engagement with Ted Burrows, former public links champion.

The champions of both courses will be brought together next Tuesday to battle over the 36-hole route for the Loeffler Trophy.

Several matches were played in other flights.

Bent Defeats Ruane.

At East Potomac, Dave Bent beat J. Ruane, 3 and 2, and Matt Walker beat Astor Clarke, 1 up in the second flight quarter-finals. In the third flight, E. Lightbrown defeated N. S. Perkins, 2 up.

In the second flight at Rock Creek Nat Paxton went to the semi-finals by whipping W. Turner, 1 up, while Bob Marks entered the finals by trimming Morris Abrams, 6 and 4. F. Williams advanced to the finals of the third flight by defeating Bob Morris, 5 and 4.

Nationals Back in First Place; Take Pair

Defeat Macks, 5-2, 10-6; Burke and Crowder Are Winning Hurlers.

Earnshaw. They got a run in the second inning when Schulte singled and Kuhel doubled, and they boosted it to 4-0 in the third aided by some atrocious outfielding by Coleman, who caught and dropped Goslin's fly. Manush, Cronin and Bluege drove the runs home.

It was 6-1 by the end of the fifth. The Nats made two more runs on singles by Schulte and Sewell and a walk to Bluege, all of which was wrapped around Cramer's wild throw to the plate. The A's had made a run in the third on Cramer's double, but Fred Schulte pulled Crowder out of a hole by a running catch of Cochrane's liner and a perfect throw to the plate for a double play on Bishop, who attempted to score.

Many Mack Errors.

The A's were full of errors today and Cochrane's wild throw on Kuhel's steal let Kuhel go to third in the seventh, whence he scored on Bluege's fly. A bit later McAfee surprised all and sundry with his homer and the score was 8-1. Cronin's triple boosted it to 9-1 in the eighth and McAfee's triple to 10-1 in the ninth.

Those three home runs by the A's in the ninth were four home runs too few.

Cronin's strategy in that first game bore fruit in the second inning when Dave Harris and Bob Boken, the right-hand hitting reserve corps, brazenly banged out a pair of doubles against the great Grove as the opening shots of the three-run rally that sunk the A's as far as the result of the opening encounter was concerned.

Boken Gets Double.

Dapper Dave slammed his two-bagger against the left field wall and scored without undue strain when Boken rammed his double to the scoreboard in right center after he had missed two strikes by the best part of a foot.

Joe Kuhel laid down a bunt to Grove, who held the ball too long, and all hands were safe, but Boken was caught at the plate on Berg's roller to Higgins, while Kuhel took third in the run-down and Berg went to second, Bob Burke squeezed Kuhel with a tricky bunt to Higgins and beat it out. Berg took third and scored on Bluege's fly to Coleman.

Mister Grove encountered some more difficulty in the fourth, albeit the Nats' two runs in that frame were slightly tainted. Moe Berg got a single on a ball that Williams lost in the sun and Burke sacrificed him to second for the second out.

Brought in by Bluege.

Bluege connected for a single to left that scored Berg and when Johnson's throw got away from Cochrane at the plate, Bluege went to third. Manush brought him home with a sharp single to right and the Nats had their 5-0 lead.

The A's first hit off Burke was a home run over the right field wall by Cochrane in the fourth. But when Burke issued his second hit, a single to Cramer, with none out in the sixth, and then passed Cochrane, Cronin called for Russell to pitch to Foxx, who ended it all for the time being with a double-play grounder to Bluege.

The one run that Russell yielded developed from one staccato wallop—Johnson's homer into the left field stands that led off the seventh. So, just to keep out of trouble in the ninth, Russell struck out Foxx, Coleman and Johnson in one-two-three order to finish up with a flourish.

This Morning

smacked that homer in the seventh. A hit by McAfee is a feat, but a homer is an event.

Clark Griffith saw the game from a box near the Nats' dug out. "Come on, Bill, another homer," he shouted to McAfee in the ninth. But a triple was the best that McAfee could do.

West Va. Sued by U. S. for Grid Tax

Athletic Department to Make Its Defense a Test Case.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 24 (AP).—The athletic department of West Virginia University, sued by the Federal Government today for alleged nonpayment of taxes on football admissions, plans to make its defense a test of the Government's right to tax the income of State institutions.

The Government suit, filed in the Federal Court at Elkins, W. Va., seeks payment of $2,029.56 which it asserts is due as tax on admissions to games played in November, 1932.

Will Provide Counsel.

H. A. Stansbury, the university's director of athletics, said tonight the National Collegiate Athletic Association will provide counsel to defend the action.

The director revealed that during October, 1932, the department paid $1,700 tax on admissions, but then learned that Minnesota and Iowa State had refused to pay, and that the National Collegiate Athletic Association had invited the Government to institute a test suit.

The association named Fielding H. Yost, of Michigan, as chairman of a committee to employ counsel to defend any such suit, Stansbury declared.

Dettweilers to Oppose Pope-Johnson Today

Helen and Billy Dettweiler will play a return match against Virginia Pope and Harvey Johnson this morning at 9 o'clock at the Manor course, home club of the golfing Dettweilers.

Helen, 18, and Billy, 15, lost to Miss Pope, 18, and Johnson, 15, last week at Kenwood by one up, during the course of which Miss Dettweiler set a new record for local women with her 81.

By way of shaping up for the match, Miss Dettweiler scored an 85 yesterday at Manor.

Cards Are Still In Race—Frisch

Quincy, Ill., July 24 (AP).—Frankie Frisch, appointed today to replace Gabby Street as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, gently eased himself into his new responsibility tonight by leading the club against Quincy of the Mississippi Valley League.

"I'm glad to have the chance to lead the Cardinals," Frisch said, "but at the same time I'm sorry to see Gabby go. I think that we still have a chance to win the pennant, and that's what we are going to fight for."

The new Cardinal manager said he had no immediate changes in mind, and that he believes the club has what it takes to win the National League title.

"I believe we can come through with what we have. If we can't, then we will try to get what we need."

Frisch, who was not scheduled to accompany the Cards for the exhibition, because of injuries, said he hoped to return to the line-up within a few days. He said he had the same hope for Jim Collins, regular first baseman, who also has been on the hospital list.

Von Reedon Faces Dougan Tonight

Reedon. If the Arkansan adhered to carefully arranged plans the customers will see him flailing away with both hands to the body. His infighting won a cluster of points two weeks ago.

But getting to Von Reedon may be a difficult problem, for the Jacksonville boy has a city-block advantage over his rival in boxing. He can stand off and spear Dougan with left jabs and belt him with rights to the head just as he did in their first bout. Dougan showed neither inclination nor ability to stop the blows. He only fought back with all the fury and power at his command.

Ray Bowen is picked to reverse the score on Roy Manley, provided the southpaw doesn't flatten the Mohawk Club lad in the first heat. Manley required less than a minute to kayo Bowen

Man, Girl Found Slain on Highway

Fort Worth, Tex., July 24 (AP).—The bodies of A. S. (Pete) Michael, 33, and a girl identified as Geneva Cantrell, 19, were found beside a road near here today. Both had been shot in the back of the head.

The girl apparently had been assaulted and her body dragged to a clump of bushes. The body of Michael had been thrown in a ditch near his automobile.

Detectives said the couple apparently had been slain about 10:30 o'clock last night.

Michael was an electrician. Police records show the girl was finger printed last Monday, having been booked for vagrancy. She had told police her home was in Oklahoma.

Closed Bank's Teller Admits Taking $5,000

Bertram Gelston Is Held for Embezzling From Franklin National.

Following a voluntary confession made to Thomas P. Hickman, conservator of the Franklin National Bank, C. Bertram Gelston, 33, 716 Somerset place northwest, teller in the bank's savings department, yesterday was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, charged with embezzling up to $5,000.

Gelston was released under $1,500 bond pending preliminary hearing August 7.

First intimation of the teller's peculations was received by Hickman Saturday in a letter. Gelston had been in the employ of the bank 12 years.

The loss is entirely covered by bond and will not affect future payment to depositors in the closed bank, Hickman pointed out.

In his letter, Gelston stated that the embezzlement had a personal motive and that there were no confederates. He did not give the motive.

Hearings Delayed In Milk-Price Quiz

Books of Distributors and Producers Are to Be Studied First.

Hearings on the investigation into District milk prices are to be deferred for another month until examinations have been completed of the books of milk distributors and producers.

This decision was made yesterday at a conference between Senator William H. King, chairman of the committee, and special counsel, Elwood H. Seal.

Aid was offered to the committee yesterday by three dairy farmers, two of which are directors of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association. They came to Mr. Seal's office and offered their help in a study of production costs and their returns for milk purchased by distributors. They are John V. Peter and James D. King, directors of the producers association, and Clay Plummer, an independent producer from Gaithersburg, Md.

Washington Girls Found in Norfolk

Two, on Way to Fair, Are Located After Eluding Police in Carolina.

Two Washington girls who disappeared from their homes here July 19 were located yesterday in Norfolk, Va., after they had eluded police at Elizabeth City, N. C., on Sunday.

They are Calla Rice, 14, daughter of Mercer M. Rice, of 811 Quincy street northwest, and Gloria Mae Flaherty, 12, of 1407 S street northwest.

The girls, who told friends they were going to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, were held at Elizabeth City, and Washington police notified, but a second message, a few minutes later, said the girls had walked out of the station house.

$500 Diamond Stolen From Miss Jahncke

A $500 diamond ring was stolen some time yesterday or the day before from the apartment of Miss Adele Townsend Jahncke at the Mayflower Hotel, her father, Ernest Lee Jahncke, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, reported to police. Hotel authorities were unable to explain how the room had been entered.

The ring was taken from a small jewelry case, which had been jimmied. Nothing else in the apartment had been touched, Mr. Jahncke said.

Picked as Prettiest by Balbo's Men

Harris & Ewing.

CAROLYN CHANTRY,

daughter of Commander Allan Chantry, U. S. N., and Mrs. Chantry, 1528 Twenty-second street northwest, was picked as "the prettiest girl they had seen in America" by the flying comrades of Gen. Balbo on their visit to Washington.

Code Drafting Denied by Head Of Taxi Group

Officials Disagree Over Possibility of Meter Rule Enforcement.

Harry C. Davis, president of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, last night denied his association is drafting a code for presentation to the National Recovery Administration to bring about enforcement of the meter regulation.

Public Utilities commission officials previously had said Davis told them his association would draft a code.

Davis also said, neither he nor the Diamond Cab operators were considering the drafting of any code to deal with the local taxicab industry.

The report that the Diamond Association is sponsoring a movement to bring about the enforcement of the Public Utilities Commission's meter regulation was heard at the District Building.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech expressed the informal opinion that the Recovery Administration would be unable to enforce the meter order because Congress, in the District appropriations act, restricted the commission from using money to enforce the regulation. The District act was passed subsequent to the industrial recovery act.

William A. Roberts, special assistant counsel of the commission, expressed the belief that the Recovery Administration would have authority to deal with the local taxicab industry.

The commission yesterday also received a copy of a code drafted by the National Association of Motor Bus Operators, to which practically all of the local interstate bus lines belong.

This code fixes a $15-a-week minimum wage except for porters, cleaners and apprentice drivers and mechanics and specifies that hours of labor shall not exceed 54 hours a week on an average over a year. Liability insurance also is required. The code has not been submitted to the Recovery Administration.

Bogus $10 Bill Passer Sought By Police Here

Police were asked yesterday to search for a man about 28 years old who is said to be passing counterfeit $10 bills. The complaint came from Mrs. May Parks, 2810 Rhode Island avenue northeast, who said the man applied for a room and handed her a bogus note in payment.

Choppers Up

300,000 Forestry Camp Workers Gain 1,500 Tons in Weight.

There are 1,500 tons more of reforestation workers in camp now than there were a month ago, even without counting the new recruits, a study of civilian conservation corps reports show.

Each of the 300,000 men in the corps has gained an average of 10 pounds of weight, according to reports. This means that Army cots every night are bearing up under a burden 3,000,000 pounds heavier than it was when the men were first sent to camps. And 3,000,000 pounds, by elementary arithmetic, is 1,500 tons.

Bride Will Report On Pay Quiz Today

City to Decide on Steps to Make Contractors Obey Ruling.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride today will submit a report to the District Commissioners on his investigation of wage complaints against the Catalano Construction Co., of Baltimore.

He declined to reveal what recommendations will be made, but whatever steps are taken will have to be determined by the Commissioners. Whether the contract will be revoked or whether the contractor will be permitted to repay workmen who charge that they were not paid the prevailing District wage is conjectural.

The case is expected to bring about a more definite policy to prevent future violations of the Bacon-Davis act. District officials insist that too many contractors are bidding on District projects with the plain intention of paying less than the prevailing wage and are thereby able to underbid competitors.

Woman Beaten in Park Fails to Identify Man

Helen Victoria Mahan, 33, of 2002 P street northwest, who was beaten in Rock Creek Park three weeks ago, yesterday failed to identify Ellsworth Williams, 20, colored, as her assailant.

Williams was arrested Saturday in connection with an attack on a 13-year-old girl in Dupont Circle. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital yesterday, where Miss Mahan is still under treatment.

Wrench Masquerades As Pistol in Holdup

Sergt. A. T. Hale, Marine Aviation Corps, Quantico, Va., was held up by a colored man early yesterday on the Fort Hunt road, south of Alexandria, and robbed of $9 in cash, a $50 check and a gold watch. After the holdup Hale noticed that what appeared to be a gun in the hand of the robber was only an old wrench, and he grappled with the robber, who fled after his weapon had been taken from him.

Budget Bureau Promises Cash For New Span

Senator King Assured of Calvert Bridge Funds When Plan Is Ready.

The Budget Bureau yesterday assured Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, that the District will get money to start construction of the new Calvert Street Bridge as soon as the controversy over plans is settled.

Senator King called on the bureau yesterday to learn whether the appropriation for the bridge, carried in the gasoline tax surplus fund, would be approved so that he could report the decision at the joint meeting of the Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on Friday. At this meeting the question of whether the Calvert Street Bridge will be of masonry or steel arch design will be decided.

Budget Director Douglas previously had refused to approve an expenditure by the District Commissioners of $1,500,000 appropriated by Congress from the gasoline tax surplus for highway improvements. This appropriation included $575,000 to start construction on the $1,250,000 Calvert Street Bridge. Later, however, after conferring with President Roosevelt, the budget director said he still had an "open mind" in the matter.

Senator King said he is reasonably sure his plan for consolidating District parks and playgrounds, now under supervision of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, with the District government will ultimately be adopted. Under his plan, parks such as Rock Creek and East and West Potomac, which are financed directly by District appropriations, together with the park police would be placed under the direction of the District Commissioners.

The design by Mr. Totten places Rock Creek 150 feet nearer Connecticut avenue than it actually is, according to Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals.

The error, discovered yesterday, makes a difference in the bridge's relation to the Rock Creek Valley, Maj. Gotwals said.

New Capitol Chief Of Police Named

W. S. Orthman, of Chicago, Succeeds S. J. Gnash, Retiring Officer.

Detective Sergt. William S. Orthman, of the Chicago Police Department, yesterday became Capt. Orthman, chief of police of the Capitol Building and Grounds.

Capt. Orthman, who was appointed yesterday and immediately sworn in, succeeds Capt. Stephen J Gnash, retiring from office after eight years as head of the Capitol police force.

A 54-year-old native of Chicago Capt. Orthman has served on Chicago's police force from patrolman to detective on special duty in the State attorney general's office.

He was appointed by the Democratic patronage committee, headed by Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, on recommendation of Senator Lewis (Democrat), Chicago. Yesterday Capt. Gnash escorted his successor in office over his new "beat."

Thief Snatches Watch From Baby in Buggy

When Mrs. Tennille Huls, 1373 E street southeast, went into the branch library at Seventh and C streets southeast yesterday to get a book, she left her baby in the perambulator at the door, and placed her wrist watch on the child's arm for it to play with.

When she came out of the library she found the child crying frantically and the watch was missing. She told police there were scratches on the child's arm, indicating that the thief had hurriedly snatched the watch.

Rule on Closed Bank Tax Held All a Mistake

Bride and Comptroller to Decide if District Levy Must Be Paid.

It was all a mistake!

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, returning from a brief vacation, spent yesterday explaining that his opinion recommending that the District Commissioners make no efforts to collect taxes from Washington's closed banks was not what it seemed.

As a consequence, a conference scheduled for yesterday between the Commissioners, the corporation counsel, the tax assessor and the auditor was postponed until tomorrow. Meanwhile, Mr. Bride will straighten out the opinion and will confer again with the Comptroller of Currency.

The trouble started when a reporter inadvertently stumbled on the Bride opinion last week and published its contents. Tax Assessor William P. Richards, among others, protested.

Yesterday Mr. Bride explained that the opinion by mistake became attached to a letter written by John Poole, conservator of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. complaining against a demand that his bank file a tax return. The opinion, Mr. Bride said, should have been applied only to three banks definitely in the hands of receivers.

Mr. Bride said the opinion would be altered accordingly and that he would discuss with the Comptroller of Currency the question of whether the banks in the hands of conservators should be made to pay the District tax.

New Yorker Sues In Sale of Airport

Seeking to Impound Cash; $1,430,600 in Claims Is Basis of Action.

A legal battle is brewing in District Supreme Court involving the recent sale of Washington Airport. Henry Woodhouse, of New York, has requested appointment of a receiver to impound the purchase money until the settlement of certain claims.

Through Attorney Raymond M. Hudson, Mr Woodhouse declared he holds claims against the airport corporation and its allies amounting to $1,430,600. In 1930, Mr. Woodhouse pointed out, he paid the airport corporation $6,000 for a lease, by which he hoped to build up aviation activities toward an ultimate profitable enterprise.

The suit alleges he was refused possession of the airport, resulting in a loss of $1,000,000. Woodhouse asked that all parties to the recent foreclosure sale be restrained from removing any of the purchase money from the District until a settlement is made.

Joseph E. Welch told Judge Given he had had several drinks of whisky after imbibing some 3.2. Welch said:

"Judge, I always thought I need never fear if I drank whisky on beer," when arraigned yesterday on a drunk charge.

Carousing Parents Sent to Children

Five Freed on Plea Jail Terms Would Make 11 Youngsters Destitue.

Two women and three men were sent home to take care of their eleven children, instead of to jail, by Police Judge Ralph Given yesterday.

The defendants were arrested during a drinking party in a hotel on C street northwest, after neighbors objected to their vociferous singing of "Sweet Adeline."

When they told Judge Given of the eleven small children who would be left destitute if they were sent to jail, he placed them on probation for six months.

Copartnership To Be Opposed For Park Bank

Full Liability Is Feared as Directors and Stockholders Meet.

Stockholders and directors of the closed Park Savings Bank at a joint meeting last night voted to contest any legal action of depositors to have the courts declare the bank a copartnership which would make both stockholders and directors liable for the institution's shortage.

A group of depositors, claiming that the charter of the bank expired in 1929, allege that since that time the institution has been operating as a banking partnership.

The depositors' committee, headed by J. W. Thompson, contests the appointment of a receiver for the bank by the Tresaury. They claim that a court receiver should be appointed.

At the meeting last night the stockholders and directors decided to employ legal aid to protect their interests.

Fear was expressed that if the courts decided that the bank had been operating as a banking partnership, all of their number or any individual could be held liable for the shortage.

The continued recognition by the State of Alabama, in which the bank was chartered, and the Treasury of the status of the bank as a corporation was asserted at the meeting to be evidence of the fact that the institution had not been operated as a partnership.

Geologist Sets Dates of First Hunters Here

Lived 13,000 Years Ago, He Says on Basis of New Evidence.

Around a few spearpoints and bones of the musk ox discovered in a New Mexico cave, the geologist weaves a "true romance" of the first inhabitants of that part of the world.

Small evidence, but yesterday at the International Geological Congress, Edgar B Howard, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., dated the first known man in the United States by it.

No bones of this race have been found, but the stone spearneads are unmistakable proof of their existence. That the spearheads were discovered with the bones of giant elephants, bison, musk oxen and other beasts, tells the geologists that this was a race of hunters.

Lived 13,000 Years Ago.

But from the musk ox bones the geologist makes his deduction that these hunters lived 13,000 years ago. For that was the last date the musk ox, now a dweller of Arctic tundras, could have lived in the New Mexico region, pushed there in the glacial periods.

Howard added that these early hunters may have developed into the basket-weavers, an agricultural race and the oldest whose bones have been found in the region.

Ancient man was an important figure in yesterday's discussions, and among the papers about him was one which gave East Africa the starting point of the human race.

"The Garden of Eden," which scientists usually place in Asia Minor or Europe, was in Africa, according to the testimony of Sir Arthur Smith Woodward, British anthropologist.

Oil Process Described.

He cited the finding of bones in Pleistocene deposits in Tanganyika. These bones were indistinguishable from those of "homo sapiens," which is science's name for modern man.

This argument would eliminate the brute-like Neanderthal man as the "missing link" in human history. Neanderthal was a different species, contemporary to the African form of homo sapiens.

Wallace E. Pratt, of the Humbolt Oil & Refining Co., of Houston, Tex., told the Congress how nature makes petroleum. The process, he said, was similar to that used in modern refineries. The processes of "cracking" and "hydrogeneration" are almost duplicated in the underground laboratories of nature, he said.

O'Hearne to Fight Contempt Charge

Ruling by U. S. Supreme Court Will Be Sought in Liquor Case.

Only intervention of the United States Supreme Court stands between Jack E. O'Hearne, alias Jack O'Hearn, and a sentence of ten months' imprisonment and a $1,000 fine which he was given following conviction on a charge of contempt of court for allegedly failing to abide by an injunction of the District Supreme Court that forbade him to engage in the "liquor business."

O'Hearne's conviction in the lower court was sustained yesterday by the District Court of Appeals in a decision written by Associate Justice William Hitz. He had been convicted by Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court, last year.

An appeal to the highest court is contemplated by Attorney Harry T. Whelan, who defended O'Hearne. Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt prosecuted the case.
